Monetary and Exchange System Reforms in China
An Experiment in Gradualism

Hassanali Mehran, Marc Quintyn, Tom Nordman, and Bernard Laurens

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND
Washington DC
September 1996
Contents

Preface vii

Glossary Of Abbreviations ix

I Introduction 1

II China's Financial Reforms Since 1978: An Overview 3

Three Components of Financial Sector Development 3

Institutions 6

Instruments 6

Markets 6

Characteristics of the Overall Reform Process 8

Laboratory Approach and Selectivity 8

Intermediate Control Mechanisms 9

III Financial Sector Development 10

The Role of Banks and Banking Before Economic Reform 10

Re-Establishment of Banking System (1978–84) 10

Diversification and Innovation (1984–88) 11

Rectification and Recentralization (1988–91) 13

Commercialization and Expansion (1992–Present) 14

Present Characteristics 15

IV Legal Underpinning for a Market-Based Financial System 18

Establishment of a Legal Framework for the Central Bank 18

Autonomy of the Central Bank 18

The Central Bank as Legal Entity 19

Primary Objective of the Central Bank 19

Responsibility for Formulating and Implementing Monetary Policy 20

Functions of the Central Bank 20

Instruments of Monetary Policy 21

Regional Participation in Monetary Policy 21

Summary: How Much Autonomy for the PBC? 22

The Commercial Bank Law 22

A Two-Tier Commercial Banking System 22

Reinforcement of the PBC's Authority 23

Separation of Banking and Nonbanking Activities 23

Enhancing Financial Discipline 23

Summary 23
V  Development of Money and Capital Markets  24
   Money Markets  24
   Primary Securities Markets  27
      Government Securities  27
      Nongovernment Securities  31
   Secondary Markets for Securities and Equity  32
      Initial Developments  32
      Building the Infrastructure  32

VI  Payments, Clearing, and Settlement System  37
   Payments System  37
   Clearing and Settlement System  38

VII  Instruments of Monetary Policy and Monetary Developments  40
   The Operating Framework  40
      The Credit Plan  41
      PBC Lending Facilities  42
      Reserve Requirements  43
      Interest Rates  45
   Open Market Operations  47
   Monetary Developments  48
      The First Cycle (1979–82)  48
      The Third Cycle (Mid–1986–Late 1989)  48
      The Fourth Cycle (1992–Present)  52
   Overview: Monetary Developments Versus the Instrument Framework  54

VIII  Developments in the Exchange System  55
   Early Stages: Regulated Exchange Rates and the Foreign Exchange Plan  55
      Swap Centers and Retention Quotas: First Step Toward Market-Determined Rates  55
      Settlement Procedures  58
      Regulation of Swap Center Trading  58
   Reform Plans and Reforms Since 1993  58
      Reform Plans  58
      Implementation  60
   The Present Exchange System  61
      Domestic and Foreign-Funded Enterprises (FFEs)  61
      Domestic and Foreign Banks  61
      Interventions by the PBC  62
      Prudential Regulation  62

IX  The Agenda for Developing a Market-Based Monetary and Exchange System  64
   Assessment of Achievements and Directions for Future Reform  64
      Assessment  64
      Some General Principles  66
      Directions for the Future  66
   Interest Rate Liberalization  67
      Reasons for Liberalizing Interest Rates  67
      Structural Impediments  68
      Plans for Interest Rate Liberalization  69