

Rethinking Employment Policy

THE URBAN INSTITUTE PRESS
Washington, D.C.

CONTENTS

Introduction	D. Lee Bawden	1
1 Rethinking Employment Policy	Isabel V. Sawhill	9
A Backward Look		10
The New Policy Environment: Setting the Stage		12
What Should We Be Trying to Achieve?		14
Providing Jobs		16
Creating More Good Jobs		21
Helping the Disadvantaged		23
Improving the Functioning of Labor Markets		25
Summary and Conclusions		29
2 Do We Know Enough about the Unemployment Problem to Know What, If Anything, Will Help?	George E. Johnson	37
The Problem of Unemployment		39
Counterrecessionary Policies		41
Long-Term Policies		47
The Limitations of an Active Labor Market Policy		54
3 Employer Approaches to Reducing Unemployment	Robert Eisner	59
Some General Analytical Considerations		61
Current Employer Jobs Subsidies		64
The Old "New Jobs Tax Credit"		68
A Program for the Future		70
Qualifications and Conclusions		77
4 Matching Workers and Job Opportunities: What Role for the Federal-State Employment Service?	Marc Bendick, Jr.	81
How the Labor Exchange Process Works		81
Is a Private Labor Exchange System Inadequate?		84

The Origin and Current Status of the Employment Service	89
Evaluating the System's Current Performance	93
Reform Option One: Incremental Reform	94
Reform Option Two: Privatization	100
Reform Option Three: A Universal Labor Exchange System	102
Conclusions	104
5 Government Training as a Means of Reducing Unemployment Burt S. Barnow	109
Background on Government Training Programs	110
The Effectiveness of Government Training Programs	117
The Impact of Government Training Programs on Earnings	120
The Role of Government Training Programs	126
6 Worker's Rights: Rethinking Protective Labor Legislation Ronald G. Ehrenberg	137
Hours-of-Work Legislation in the United States	138
Employment at Will	142
Comparable Worth	150
Plant Closing Legislation	156
Concluding Remarks	163
7 Insuring Equal Opportunity in Employment Through Law Leroy D. Clark	173
The Efficacy of Federal Law	175
Reform of Antidiscrimination Laws	180
Reform of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission	185
A New Special Board	194
8 Implications of Internationalization for Labor Market Institutions and Industrial Relations Systems Ray Marshall	205
The Growth of the Global Economy	205
Consequences of Internationalization for Employment Policy	209
Is Internationalization Causing Us to Lose Our Competitive Edge?	212

The Traditional Industrial Relations System	217
Adaptability to Change	219
The Implications of the Internationalization of the U.S. Economy for the Traditional Industrial Relations System	223
9 International Competition and American
Jobs Daniel Burton	227
Firm-Level Policies	229
Immigration	233
Trade	235
Monetary and Fiscal Policy	239
Policy Agenda	244
10 Effective Employment Policy: The Missing
Middle Forrest Chisman	249
The Place of Employment Policy in the Federal Social Role	249
The Extent of the Employment Problem	251
A Full Employment Policy Suited to Our Times	255
Can We Do It?	260
About the Contributors	265
About the Editors	267

Tables

2.1 Standardized Unemployment Rates for OECD Countries, 1975-79 and 1984	38
2.2 Real Per Capita Funding of Employment and Training Programs, 1963 to 1985-86	38
2.3 Federal Minimum Wage in Real and Relative Terms, 1979-87	48
2.4 Indices of Interstate Dispersion of Employment Growth Over Postwar Business Cycles	51

5.1 Characteristics of JTPA Title IIA Enrollees in the Transition Year (October 1983–84) and Program Year 1986 (July 1986–June 1987)	114
5.2 Characteristics of JTPA Title IIA Enrollees by Activity, Program Year 1986 (July 1986–June 1987)	115
5.3 Characteristics of JTPA Title III Enrollees, Program Year 1986 (June 1986–June 1987)	116
5.4 Summary of Estimated CETA Impacts on Earnings	122
5.5 Proportion of CETA Participants Whose Postprogram Occupational Field Matched the In-Program Occupational Field	125