
ME GIS TOS

A WORLD INCOME
AND TRADE MODEL
FOR 1975

Edited by

C. DUPREZ and E. S. KIRSCHEN

1

2

Megistos

2

NORTH-HOLLAND PUBLISHING COMPANY — AMSTERDAM · LONDON
AMERICAN ELSEVIER PUBLISHING COMPANY — NEW YORK

CONTENTS

Introduction	v
Table of authors	xv
Main symbols	xvii
List of figures and diagrams	xviii
List of tables	xix

Part one – The model

Chapter I. Predictive world models

H. Glejser

A. A brief history of predictive models	3
B. Gap models	4
C. Equilibrium models	6
D. Main features and results	7
E. Some weaknesses of existing world models	13
Addendum to Chapter I	14
Bibliography	15

Chapter II. Main characteristics and assumptions of the Megistos model

E.S. Kirschen

A. The period covered	17
B. Outline of the model	17
C. A comparison with other models	21
D. Our twelve zones	25
E. Demographic projections	31
Bibliography	33

Chapter III. A megisto-economic survey of the world in 1960

E.S. Kirschen, B. Kahn, F. Thys-Clement

A. Zonal populations and products	34
B. Interzone trade	36
C. A time-lag measurement of underdevelopment	39
Bibliography	42

Part two – The developed capitalist countries

Chapter IV. The growth of developed capitalist zones

N. Schmitz

A. The methods used	45
B. Comparison with the forecasts of other authors	53
Bibliography	55

Chapter V. Imports of goods

P. Kestens, C. Tacquenier

A. Introduction	57
B. Method of projecting imports	59
C. Aggregation per product categories	65
D. Import functions	72
E. Projected overall imports for 1975	78
F. Projections of imports from region C	88
G. Projection of imports from each of the C zones	135
Appendix I. Product categories and products	154
Appendix II. Notes concerning the assessment of the parameters of the price variable in import functions	157
Appendix III. Forecast concerning gross domestic capital formation	158
Appendix IV. Forecasts for exports of non-monetary gold	162
Bibliography	162

Chapter VI. Export of services by underdeveloped countries

E.S. Kirschen, C. Duprez, P. Koettlitz, F. Thys-Clement

A. Methodological problems	166
B. Export of freight, merchandise, insurance and other transportation	168
C. The receipts from the Panama and Suez Canals	172
D. Exports of travel services	173
E. Government receipts	177
F. Transfers by migrants	182
G. Other services	183
H. Recapitulation	186
Bibliography	188

Chapter VII. Aid from capitalist countries

E.S. Kirschen

A. The purpose of the exercise	189
B. Definitions of aid	190
C. Aid in recent years (1962–1965)	190
D. Aid motivations in 1975	197
E. Aid given in 1975	198
F. Breakdown between bilateral and multilateral aid	199
G. Aid received in 1975	200
Bibliography	203

Chapter VIII. Private capital flows to underdeveloped countries

B. Gregoire

A. Introduction	205
B. Direct investments by the oil industry in underdeveloped countries	207
C. Other direct investments in underdeveloped countries	214
D. Portfolio investment and other lending to underdeveloped countries	217
E. Export credits	224
F. Recapitulation	227
Bibliography	229

Part three – The communist countriesChapter IX. Projection of the material products

A. Dramais

A. Formulation of Net Material Products in a single monetary unit	233
B. Choice of growth rates for 1960–1975	237
Bibliography	240

Chapter X. Imports of goods from the underdeveloped countries

W. Pouliart

A. Introduction	241
B. Imports from Communist Asia	243
C. Imports from Cuba	250
D. Imports from the non-communist underdeveloped zones	253
E. Total imports from the underdeveloped zones in 1975	264
Bibliography	271

Chapter XI. The aid to the underdeveloped countries

W. Pouliart

A. Introduction	272
B. The USSR (zone B1)	273
C. The countries of Eastern Europe (zone B2)	289
Bibliography	300

Part four – The underdeveloped zonesChapter XII. Production functions for underdeveloped zones or countries

E.S. Kirschen.

A. Types of functions	305
B. Population trends	307
C. Changes in GDP trends	309
D. Export-propelled growth	316
E. Production functions relying only on the capital stock	319
F. Production functions combining the capital stock and a trend	329
Bibliography	330
Appendix I. Factors explaining underdevelopment which are unlikely to change before 1975
E.S. Kirschen, C. Tacquenier	331
Bibliography	336
Appendix II. Two special factors of underdevelopment
J.P. Harroy	337
A. Oppressive structures	337
B. Shortage of arable land	341
Bibliography	342

Chapter XIII. Communist Asia (zone C1)

V. Ginsburgh

A. Introduction	343
B. Population	344
C. The economy during the period 1950–1965	346
D. Projection based on Ishikawa's projection model	349
E. Extrapolation to the whole of Communist Asia	350
Appendix I. Factors likely to influence the Chinese rate of growth	356
Appendix II. Factors explaining underdevelopment and unlikely to change before 1975	362
Bibliography	363

Chapter XIV. Africa (zone C2)

E.S. Kirschen, A. Baba-Moussa

A. General characteristics	365
B. The present position	369
C. Projections based on corrected trends (including export-propelled growth)	373
D. Projections by other authors for former British and French territories based on the availability of foreign exchange resources	386
E. Conclusions	390
Appendix. Factors explaining underdevelopment and unlikely to change before 1975	393
Bibliography	401

Chapter XV. Non-communist Asia (zone C3)

B. Grégoire, P. Kestens

A. General characteristics	404
B. The present position	405
C. Projection based on extrapolation of the trends	421
D. Corrected trend	424
E. Export-propelled growth	426
F. Model linking growth to import capacity	427
G. Projections by other authors and National Planning agencies	442
Appendix I. Factors explaining underdevelopment which are unlikely to change before 1975	445
Appendix II. Production functions per country in the Third subzone	454
Appendix III. Statistical data	457
Bibliography	462

Chapter XVI. Latin America (zone C4)

A. Dramais

A. General characteristics	465
B. Present situation and recent evolution	468
C. Extrapolations of past growth trends	493
D. Projections based on corrected trends	494
E. Export-propelled growth	499
F. Model linking growth to import capacity	501
G. Recapitulation of projections for the zone	506
H. Comparison with other authors	510

Appendix I. Factors explaining underdevelopment and unlikely to change before 1975	512
Appendix II. Statistical data	516
Bibliography	518
Chapter XVII. The oil producing countries (zone C5)
A. Dramais
A. Characteristics of the zone	520
B. The present position and recent evolution	522
C. Projections based on past and modified trends	531
D. Projection of GDP in relation to oil production	535
E. Projections made by other authors	536
F. Conclusions	538
Appendix I. Methods used to calculate GDP	541
Appendix II. Factors explaining the present state of underdevelopment of the zone	543
Bibliography	547
Chapter XVIII. The Mediterranean zone (zone C6)
C. Duprez
A. General characteristics of the zone, situation in 1965 and past trends	548
B. Projection of past trends	588
C. Projection by means of a model linking growth to import capacity	593
D. Projections adopted	614
Appendix I. Estimation of the stock of capital	616
Appendix II. Basic statistical data	622
Bibliography	642
Chapter XIX. Growth forecasts for 1975
E.S. Kirschen
A. Growth in developed countries (1800--1975)	643
B. Growth in underdeveloped zones and subzones	650
Bibliography	656