

PATRICK GEDDES

Social evolutionist and city planner

HELEN MELLER

London and New York

Contents

List of illustrations	xi
Preface	xiii
Chapter one: Introduction	1
Chapter two: The formative years: the biologist's viewpoint	18
Experiences of childhood and youth	20
London and Huxley	25
France, the University of Paris and the study of marine biology	31
The discovery of Le Play and the Le Playist School	34
Elisée Reclus and the study of the region	38
Auguste Comte and the Comtean definition of sociology	43
Geddes' 'thinking machines' and notations	45
Chapter three: Practical experiments in social evolution	56
The British Association and developments in the social sciences	57
Education and social change: the impact of nationalism and culture	63
Education and social change: the impact of art and late Victorian neo-Romanticism	65
Education and social change: the social reform movement	66
Practical social work	68
Philanthropic activities and the renovation of Old Edinburgh	73
Education and social change: the 'living organism'	79
Chapter four: Museums, actual and possible	89
Regional education and the Edinburgh Summer Meetings	92
Regional education and national identity	98
From the regional to the cosmopolitan perspective: the evolution of activities at the Outlook Tower	102
The Outlook Tower as a prototype for a new kind of municipal museum	106
From Outlook Tower to Index Museum: the prospect of international concerns	110

Contents

Edinburgh to Paris in 1900: from regional museum to hopes for an international Index Museum	113
Chapter five: Maverick in the social sciences	121
Geddes' contribution to the 'new' geography	122
Geography and the region: the problems of definition	134
Geddes' contribution to sociology in Britain	138
Eugenics and civics	140
Social experiments in London: Crosby Hall and Chelsea	147
The 'Masques of Learning': propaganda for the concept of cultural evolution	149
Chapter six: The sociologist of the town-planning movement	156
Geddes' first commission for city development: the Dunfermline Report	161
Fallow years as practitioner and prophet of 'civics as applied sociology'	169
The ultimate educational and propaganda tool: the Cities and Town-Planning Exhibition	175
The Regional Survey as an educational method for planners	179
Geddes and the Irish experience: the professional 'trouble-shooter' as planner	182
'Cities in Evolution': Geddes' influence on the concepts of town-planning before 1914	190
Chapter seven: The challenge of India and Palestine	201
Urbanisation in India, 1900-1925	205
Improving cities in the Indian context	208
Western responses to Indian urban problems	211
The cultural context for environmental planning in India	213
Geddes' exploration of indigenous culture and traditions	217
Geddes and the Indian nationalist movement	220
Geddes and higher education in India: the Chair of Sociology and Civics at Bombay	223
Geddes' response to the First World War	228
Chapter eight: Social reconstruction in India and Palestine	236
The early Indian Reports: explorations in the biological viewpoint	237
The Lucknow Reports: the apogee of Geddes' practical successes	245
Geddesian planning in the princely states: Baroda and Indore	248

Contents

Jerusalem and Palestine	263
Barra Bazar and the problems of the Geddesian approach	282
Chapter nine: Regional Survey in the international context: the legacy of Geddes	289
'Regional Survey' and the town-planning profession	292
Lewis Mumford and the legacy of Geddes	300
Urban sociology and the legacy of Geddes	303
The Regional Survey movement of the 1920s	305
Geddes' last major work: 'Life: outlines of general biology'	309
Regional Survey at Montpellier: the Collège des Ecosais	315
Geddes' legacy to the making of the future	317
Select bibliography	334
Index	349