

Import Controls and Export-Oriented Development

A Reassessment of the South Korean Case

Richard Luedde-Neurath

Westview Press / Boulder and London

Contents

List of Tables.....	ix
List of Acronyms.....	xi
Acknowledgments.....	xiii

INTRODUCTION.....	1
-------------------	---

1. SOUTH KOREA: TEST CASE IN A THEORETICAL DEBATE ON TRADE CONTROLS.....	7
---	---

1.1 Protection as a Valid Policy Tool for Development.....	7
1.2 Import Controls as a Misguided Policy Option..	23
1.3 South Korea as a Key Witness in the Debate....	40

2. THE NINETEEN-SIXTIES: A DECADE OF LIBERALISATION IN KOREA?.....	51
---	----

2.1 Import Policy During the Pre-1965 Period.....	52
2.2 Import Policy 1965-1967.....	68
2.3 The Switch to the Negative List System.....	75
2.4 A Micro Analysis of Korean Import Policy in 1968.....	79

3. THE KOREAN KALEIDOSCOPE: A GENERAL SURVEY OF IMPORT CONTROLS.....	89
---	----

3.1 Trader Licensing.....	91
3.2 Quantitative Controls.....	96
3.3 Foreign Exchange Allocation.....	114
3.4 Settlement Methods.....	120
3.5 Advance Deposits.....	122
3.6 Customs Procedures.....	124

4. A DISAGGREGATED ANALYSIS OF KOREAN IMPORT MANAGEMENT.....	133
4.1 The Alternative Approach: An Outline.....	134
4.2 The Form and Evolution of Import Controls....	136
4.3 The Sectoral Dimension of Import Controls....	140
4.4 Government Involvement in Free Imports: A Case Study.....	144
4.5 Perception Gaps in the Import Liberalisation Ratio.....	151
4.6 Special Laws Operating in 1982: A Case Study.	153
5. IMPORT CONTROLS AND DEVELOPMENT: A REASSESSMENT...	159
5.1 The Invisible Hand Versus the Invisible Fist.	160
5.2 Foreign Exchange Deficiency and Protection...	163
5.3 Industrial Strategy and Protection.....	174
5.4 The Dilemma of Intervention.....	178
6. POLICY IMPLICATIONS OF THIS STUDY.....	183
6.1 Implications for Korea.....	183
6.2 Implications for LDCs.....	187
6.3 Implications for Development Studies.....	189
Appendix.....	193
Bibliography.....	221
Index.....	241