

MARKETING DECISION MAKING: A Model Building Approach

PHILIP KOTLER
Northwestern University

HOLT, RINEHART AND WINSTON
New York Chicago San Francisco
Atlanta Dallas Montreal
Toronto London Sydney

Contents

- Preface v
- 1 Marketing Analysis and Decision Making 1
 - Complex Factors in the Marketing Process 2
 - How Companies Cope With Marketing Complexity 5
 - The Need for Theory in Marketing Management 7
 - Sources of Normative Theory: Economics and Operations Research 10
 - Analytic Statement of the Marketing Programming Problem 16

- Part I Macromarketing Decision Theory 21
 - 2 Aggregate Sales Response to a Single Marketing Instrument 23
 - Demand Function 24
 - Cost Function 37
 - Profit Function 44
 - Profit Maximization: Some Examples 45
 - Summary 49
 - 3 Multiple Marketing Instruments 51
 - Marketing Mix Determination in Theory 56
 - Specific Equation Forms for Representing the Effects of the Marketing Mix 64
 - Allowing for Differences in Marketing Effectiveness 75
 - Summary 79
 - 4 Competitive Strategy 82
 - Determination of Total Market Demand 84
 - Market Share Determination 92
 - Profit Maximization Under Competitive Conditions 99
 - Summary 117

5	Carryover Effects	120
	Delayed Response Model of Carryover Effects	121
	Customer Holdover Model of Carryover Effects	124
	Representing the Carryover Effect in Equation Form	127
	Deriving Measures of Response from Carryover Models	133
	Summary	139
6	Multiple Territories	141
	Company Practices in Allocating the Marketing Budget to Territories	142
	Theory of Allocating the Market Budget to Territories	147
	Summary	160
7	Multiple Products	163
	The Multiproduct Marketing Strategy Problem	166
	Production Rate Problem	174
	Product Mix Problem	177
	Summary	188
8	Joint Marketing and Production Planning	192
	Inventory Planning Under Uncertain Demand	196
	Production Planning for Seasonal Demand	202
	Optimal Policy Toward Marginal Customers	207
	Marketing-Production Planning in the Face of System Dynamics	212
	Centralized or Decentralized Marketing-Production Planning	220
	Summary	223
9	Company Goals	226
	Single-Goal Formulations	227
	Multiple Goal Formulations	237
	Summary	247
10	Uncertainty	250
	Sources of Uncertainty	252
	Decision Criteria Under Uncertainty	257
	Adaptive Models for Handling Uncertainty	279
	Summary	282

Part II Micromarketing Decision Models 286

11	Distribution Decision Models	287
	Distribution Strategy	290
	Distribution Location	302
	Distribution Logistics	323
	Distribution Management	328
	Summary	331
12	Price Decision Models	334
	Limitations of the Theoretical Pricing Model	335
	Methods of Price Setting in Practice	339
	Competitive Bidding Models	348
	Initiating and Reacting to Price Changes	353
	Product Line Pricing	362
	Summary	367
13	Sales Force Decision Models	370
	Designing and Assigning Sales Territories	371
	Determining Call Norms and Schedules	380
	Setting Sales Quotas and Commissions	407
	Summary	423
14	Advertising Decision Models	428
	The Advertising Goals Decision	430

Message and Copy Decision	438
The Media Decision	446
Summary	465

Part III Models of Market Behavior 469

15 Sales Models for Established Products	470
Microcomponent Sales Model	471
Microanalytic Sales Model	474
Summary	485
16 Brand Share Sales Models	488
Buyers' Perceptions and Preferences	491
The Brand Choice Process	497
Summary	515
17 Sales Models for New Products	519
Types of New Product Situations	520
First Purchase Models	523
Repeat Purchase Models	552
Summary	560

Part IV From Theory to Practice 565

18 The Marketing Information System	566
The Marketing Information System	567
Major Approaches to Gathering Information	574
Major Statistical Tools for Analyzing Data	596
Summary	610
19 Planning and Control Processes in the Marketing Organization	615
The Annual Marketing Planning Process	616
The Marketing Control Process	633
Summary	637
20 Implementing Management Science in Marketing	640
Role and Personality Conflict Between Manager and Management Scientist	641
Strategies for Introducing Management Science into the Marketing Organization	644
Recent Trends in Management Science in Marketing	653
Summary	654
21 Developing the Corporate Marketing Model	657
Evolution and Present State of Development of Corporate Marketing Models	658
A Systematic Procedure for Constructing a Corporate Marketing Model	664
Summary	681
Appendix	683
Index	707