

3/80

437

Kieler Studien

Institut für Weltwirtschaft an der Universität Kiel

Herausgegeben von Herbert Giersch

195

Jamuna Prasad Agarwal

Pros and Cons of

Third World Multinationals

A Case Study of India

J.C.B. MOHR (PAUL SIEBECK) TÜBINGEN

ISSN 0340-6989

VB TU Darmstadt

51568451

Contents

	Page
List of Tables.....	VII
Abbreviations.....	IX
Acknowledgements.....	X
I. Introduction.....	1
II. The Relevance of the Eclectic Theory for the Third World Multinationals.....	6
III. A Motives Analysis Based on Indian Survey.....	15
1. Prospects of Growth of Domestic and Export Markets of Host Countries.....	16
2. Administrative Restrictions in India.....	17
a. Restrictions on Domestic Growth.....	17
b. Foreign Exchange Restrictions.....	22
3. Other Motives.....	23
4. Conclusion.....	27
IV. Indian Foreign Investment Policies.....	30
1. Main Characteristics of Government Policy.	32
2. Incentives Granted by the Indian Govern- ment.....	37
V. Growth, Size and Financing Sources of Indian FDI ...	41
1. Growth of Joint Ventures.....	41
2. Size of FDI.....	43
3. Financing Sources.....	46
VI. Pattern of Indian FDI.....	54
1. Regional Distribution.....	54
2. Industrial Concentration.....	62
3. Ownership Structure.....	68
4. Conclusions.....	72

	Page
VII. Indian Multinationals and South-South Trade.....	75
1. Preliminary Remarks.....	75
2. Aggregate Balance-of-Payments Effect.....	78
3. Sectoral Performance	82
4. Regional Contribution	86
5. Export Replacement.....	88
6. Contribution to South-South Trade	99
VIII. Conclusions	105
Appendix Tables.....	117
Bibliography	120