

New Firm Formation and Regional Development

MICHAEL CROSS
*Small Business Centre,
Durham University
Business School*

Gower

Contents

| | |
|---|-----|
| Preface | vi |
| 1. New Firm Formation and Regional Development: An Introduction. | 1 |
| 2. The Origins and Structure of Manufacturing Industry in Scotland. | 7 |
| 3. The Data: Sources and Coverage. | 28 |
| 4. Scotland: The Components of Manufacturing Employment Change, 1968 - 77. | 41 |
| 5. Aspects of Employment Decline and Its Potential Role in the New Firm Formation Process. | 84 |
| 6. The Opening of New Manufacturing Plants in Scotland, 1968 - 77. | 130 |
| 7. The Process of New Firm Formation: Avenues for Enquiry. | 178 |
| 8. New Firm Formation: Aspects of the Process. | 201 |
| 9. Spatial Variations in the New Firm Formation Process. | 246 |
| 10. Implications and Conclusions. | 282 |
| Bibliography | 290 |
| Appendix | 325 |
| Index | 334 |