

CHINA'S ECONOMIC REVOLUTION

ALEXANDER ECKSTEIN

*Formerly Professor of Economics and
Director of the Chinese Economic Studies Program
The University of Michigan*

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge

London New York Melbourne

Contents

List of tables	viii
Preface	x
1 The economic heritage	1
The relevance of the past	1
China as an underdeveloped area	8
Economic development in pre-Communist China	19
The state of the economy in 1949	26
The legacy of the past	27
2 Development strategies and policies in contemporary China	31
Economic objectives and goals	31
Maoism and the character of economic objectives in contemporary China	32
Instruments and appeals for implementing these objectives	37
Economic policy issues	42
Economic development strategies in contemporary China	50
Conclusions	63
3 Property relations and patterns of economic organization in China	66
The system of property relations	66
Enterprise organization in China	77
Conclusions	108

4	The resource-allocating system	110
	The general planning framework	110
	The distribution and pricing of farm products in China	112
	Resource allocation in the industrial sector	120
	Conclusions	156
5	The quest for economic stability	159
	The historical roots	159
	The war-time and post-war inflationary spiral	161
	Inflationary effects	163
	The restoration of stability	166
	The maintenance of stability	171
	The role of monetary management and the banking system	176
	The role of fiscal management and the budgetary system	181
	Conclusions	189
6	Economic development and structural change	191
	The setting	191
	Limitations of the GNP measure and some of its implications	192
	Comparability of China with other industrializing countries	194
	China's economic development: an overview, 1949-1974	196
	Agricultural development	206
	Industrial development	213
	Rates of growth and change in the economy	222
	Implications of the structural shifts in the Chinese economy	228
7	The role of foreign trade in China's economic development	233
	The gains from trade	233
	The foreign trade policies of the People's Republic of China	236
	The evolution of China's foreign trade	245
	The commodity composition of China's foreign trade	249
	China's foreign trade in the 1970s	253
	Conclusions	273

8 The Chinese development model	277
Introduction	277
Objectives	278
Factor endowments	286
Institutional mechanisms and incentives	291
Performance	296
Distinctiveness and transferability of the Chinese development model	311
Prospects and dilemmas	317
Notes	321
Index	333