

MASTER PRODUCTION SCHEDULING

Principles and Practice

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT
Fachbereich 1
Gesamtbibliothek
Betriebswirtschaftslehre
Inventar-Nr. :	35.855
Abstell-Nr. :	A25/430
Sachgebiete:	4.3.1.3
	00226097

By
William L. Berry
Thomas E. Vollmann
D. Clay Whybark

Based upon a Seminar supported by Indiana University
Prepared . . . by W.L. Berry, T.E. Vollmann, and D.C. Whybark
Funded by the APICS Educational and Research Foundation
Published . . by the American Production and Inventory Control
Society

First Printing July 1979

Second Printing January 1983

BWL TU Darmstadt

54441088

Copyright 1979 American Production and Inventory Control Society

International Standard Book Number: 0-935406-21-2
Library of Congress Catalog Card Number: 82-236025

CONTENTS

iii	Foreword
iv	Preface
1	Chapter 1	The Need for a Master Production Scheduling Study
2	Chapter 2	A General Master Production Scheduling Framework
9	Chapter 3	Master Production Scheduling Principles
19	Chapter 4	The Companies and Their Characteristics
23	Chapter 5	Pfizer, Inc. Easton, PA Plant
37	Chapter 6	Ethan Allen, Inc. Case Goods Division
57	Chapter 7	Black and Decker Manufacturing Co., Hampstead, MD Plant
73	Chapter 8	Abbott Laboratories, Ltd. of Canada
93	Chapter 9	Dow Corning Corporation
111	Chapter 10	Elliott Company, Division of Carrier Corporation Jeannette, PA Plant
129	Chapter 11	Hyster, Inc. Portland, Oregon Plant
155	Chapter 12	Tennant Company
169	Appendix A	Company Information Sheet
173	Appendix B	MPS Survey Form
179	Appendix C	Glossary of MPS Terminology
183	Bibliography	