

WILLIAM R. CLINE

HE

Systemic Risk and Policy Response

INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS
Washington, DC 1984

Distributed by The MIT Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts, and London, England

Contents

Introduction	xv
1 Origins of the Problem	1
Debt Trends	1
Oil Prices	8
Interest Rates and Recession	11
Domestic Policies	14
Psychology	17
Summary	18
2 Systemic Vulnerability and Emergency Response	21
Bank Exposure	21
Moratorium Consequences	26
Rescue Operations, 1982–83	29
Performance to Date	32
Tactical Lessons	34
3 Debt Prospects Through 1986	39
Insolvency or Illiquidity?	39
A Projection Model	40
Results	46
Implications	67
4 Debt Dynamics: Involuntary Lending, Rescheduling, and Default Incentives	71
Involuntary Lending	71
Free Riders	75
Policy Implications of Involuntary Lending	78

Rescheduling Techniques	79
Default Incentives	86
5 Medium-Term Viability	95
Maturity Bunching	95
Reconversion to Voluntary Lending	100
Political Viability	104
6 Adequacy of Banking Institutions	111
Organization of Foreign Lending	111
Bank Regulation	115
Lender of Last Resort	119
7 Policy Strategy	123
IMF Quotas	123
Financing Requirements	127
Proposals for Radical Reform	130
Evaluation of Radical Reform	133
Contingency Planning	135
Interest Capitalization and Forgiveness	137
A Balanced Strategy	143
Summary Recommendations	146
8 Current Prospects for International Debt	151
Experience Through Mid-1984	152
Actual Versus Projected Performance	155
Updated Projections	159
Alternative Studies	169
Emerging Issues	175
Trends in Negotiations	189
The Lost Decade	194
Protection	197
Conclusion	199
 Appendices
A A Logit Model of Debt Rescheduling, 1969-82	205
Causes of Debt-Servicing Difficulty: A Model	207
Foreign Credit Market	208
Demand for Rescheduling	211

Supply Side	215
Reduced Form	220
Data	222
Results	225
Large Debtor Countries	231
Creditworthiness Trends	233
Projections	235
Conclusion	238
B A Projection Model for Balance of Payments and Debt	240
The Model	240
Results	245
C Managing the Debt Crisis: Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, Poland, and Yugoslavia	257
Mexico	257
Brazil	262
Argentina	268
Poland	273
Yugoslavia	281
D Notes on Data	291
E Statistical Appendix	293