

Ft. Interdependent Development

HA: Harold Brookfield

IntWi / BRØ

Methuen & Co Ltd

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE
DARMSTADT

Inv.-Nr.:

H15795

WIRTSCHAFTL. POLITIK
(VWL II)

Contents

PREFACE ix

1 FROM THE BEGINNING 1

Development thinking before 'development' began 2

Exploitation, protection and mercantilism – The rise of economic liberalism – Theory about growth, irrelevant to dependent economies – The 'ethical' period, and the emergence of 'development' – Theorizing around exploitation: Hobson and the Marxists – Economics, and the Great Depression of the 1930s

2 THE VIRTUES OF GROWTH 24

Growth in theory 26

Measures of economic performance – Models of growth – The theoretical problem of getting growth started – The measurement of required savings: a digression – Growth as a doctrine: the work of W. W. Rostow

Growth in action: the 1960s 39

The drive to achieve development – The First Development Decade – The case of Latin America – The Second Development Decade, and second thoughts

3 DUALISM, SECTORS AND MODERNIZATION 53

Dualism 54

From observation to argument: 'classic dualism' – Economic dualism: reasoning from premises – Economic dualism: testing and modification – Dualism revisited

The two-sector problem 70

The urban-industrial bias – Industry or agriculture first? – The wrong sort of industrialization? – The service sector

The comfortable myth of 'modernization' 76

The world of Dr Pangloss – Origins of modernization – Modernization: revisionism and dissent

4 NOTIONS OF INEQUALITY, SPACE AND POLARIZED GROWTH 85

Some antecedents 86

Joseph Schumpeter – François Perroux – Some lessons from history

Spread and backwash: centre and periphery 97

Albert Hirschman and Gunnar Myrdal – Disequalization as transition: John Friedmann

viii/Contents

- Growth poles and central places 105
Growth poles after Perroux – Central place theory, central places and diffusion
- Enter certain geographers, deep in conversation: stage right 110
Brian Berry – The 'geography of modernization' – Some enigmas of the geographers' contribution
- General theory? 116
Horst Siebert – The later John Friedmann – Discussion
- 5 VOICES FROM THE PERIPHERY 124
- Original and orthodox Marxism 124
The revolution did not take place where Marx predicted – China: the 'village' and the 'city' – The international socialist division of labour – Historical necessity or choice?
- The Latin American structuralists: 'neo-Marxism' 133
Latin American origins – The Marxist infusion – Towards a new paradigm: Prebisch, ECLA and industrialization – Underdevelopment as autonomous process: Celso Furtado - Erroneous theses and other dissents - The Caribbean version: plantation economy and branch plant – The 'development of underdevelopment'
- 6 INTERDEPENDENT DEVELOPMENT: APPROACHES TOWARDS SYNTHESIS 166
- Development and change in history and in theory 169
Economic development and economic history – Economy as 'instituted process' – Economists as revisionists – Transnational capitalism and national disintegration – Structuralism and 'development in richer lands – Towards a new approach to development study
- Some questions of method and theory 189
Interdependent development: some implications for inquiry – Aggregation and disaggregation – Do we need full Marx?
- 7 A CONCLUSION THAT IS AN INTRODUCTION 199
Who is dependent on whom? – Towards a relevant science of development – A disagreement about scarcity – An introduction to a future task
- LIST OF REFERENCES 210
- INDEX OF PERSONS 231