

Segmenting the Industrial Market

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT
Fachbereich 1
Gesamtbibliothek
Betriebswirtschaftslehre
Inventar-Nr. :	35.721
Abstell-Nr. :	A28/1286
Sachgebiete :	5.5
	00251556

Thomas V. Bonoma
Benson P. Shapiro
Harvard University

LexingtonBooks
D.C. Heath and Company
Lexington, Massachusetts
Toronto

Contents

	Figures and Tables	ix
	Preface and Acknowledgments	xi
Chapter 1	Introduction	1
	Defining Segmentation	1
	Growing Need for Industrial Market Segmentation	3
	Previous Work in Industrial Market Segmentation	4
	Purpose and Nature of This Book	5
Chapter 2	A Nested Approach to Industrial Market Segmentation	7
	Demographics	8
	Operating Variables	10
	Purchasing Approaches	13
	Situational Factors	15
	Personal Characteristics of Decision Makers	18
	Understanding and Applying the Nested Approach	18
	Summary	22
Chapter 3	The Outer Nest: Demographics	25
	Industry	25
	Location and Size	28
	Assessment	29
Chapter 4	The Outer-Middle Nest: Operating Variables	33
	Technology	33
	User-Nonuser of Product and Brand	34
	Purchase of Related Products	37
	Customer Capabilities	38
	Assessment	39

Chapter 5	The Middle Nest: Purchasing Approaches	41
	Purchasing Organization	41
	Power Structure	43
	Nature of Existing Relationship	59
	General Purchasing Practices and Policies	61
	Purchasing Criteria	62
	An Integrated View	64
Chapter 6	The Inner-Middle Nest: Situational Factors	67
	Application	67
	Type and Size of Purchase	71
	Environmental Situation	72
	Risk	73
Chapter 7	The Innermost Nest: Personal Characteristics	75
	Buyer-Seller Similarity	75
	Motivation	77
	Perception	81
	Risk-Management Strategies	83
	Personal-Characteristics Nest	87
Chapter 8	Applying Market-Segmentation Schemes	91
	Approaches to Segmentation	91
	Economics of Applying Market Segmentation	94
	The Optimum Point	102
	Applying Segmentation Schemes	103
Chapter 9	Controlling Segmentation Implementation	105
	Customer-Conversion Analysis	105
	Segment-Profitability Analysis	108
	Integration of the Measures	111
Chapter 10	Concluding Remarks	113
	Endnotes	115
	Bibliography	117
	Index of Names	123
	Index of Subjects	125
	About the Authors	127