

The Transition from Socialism in Eastern Europe

Domestic Restructuring and Foreign Trade

EDITED BY

ARYE L. HILLMAN

AND

BRANKO MILANOVIC

1992 IBRD Washington, D.C.

The World Bank
Washington, D.C.

Contents

Introduction 1

Arye L. Hillman and Branko Milanovic

I. Domestic Restructuring

A. Economic Policies as Requisites for Systemic Change

- 1 Policy Effectiveness in Reforming Socialist Economies 13
Manuel Hinds
- 2 Privatization Options and Procedures 41
Branko Milanovic
- 3 Is There a Case for Employee Ownership? 83
Željko Bogetić
- 4 Are There Lessons from China's Economic Policies? 105
Kang Chen, Gary H. Jefferson, and Inderjit Singh

B. Experiences with Decentralized Socialist Enterprises

- 5 Self-Management: Theory and Yugoslav Practice 133
Fernando Saldanha
- 6 State Paternalism and the Yugoslav Failure 159
Milan Vodopivec
- 7 Enterprise Restructuring in the Transition from Hungarian Market Socialism 179
Arye L. Hillman
- 8 Life after the Polish "Big Bang": Episodes of Preprivatization Enterprise Behavior 197
Alan Gelb, Erika Jorgensen, and Inderjit Singh

II. Foreign Trade

A. The Legacy of Past Interdependencies

- 9 The CMEA System of Trade and Payments: Initial Conditions for Institutional Change 217
Martin Schrenk
- 10 Creating the Reform-Resistant Dependent Economy: Socialist
Comparative Advantage, Enterprise Incentives, and the CMEA 243
Arye L. Hillman and Adi Schnytzer
- 11 International Technology Transfer and Efficiency in Socialist Enterprises: The Polish Failure of the 1970s 263
Katherine Terrell
- 12 The Government Budgetary Consequences of Reform of the CMEA
System of International Trade: The Case of Hungary 277
Istvan Abel, Arye L. Hillman, and David Tarr

B. The Adaptation of International Transactions

- 13 Proposals for Post-CMEA Trade and Payments Arrangements 297
Constantine Michalopoulos and David Tarr
- 14 International Trade and Payments Mechanisms: Options and Possibilities, Another View 313
Wilfred J. Ethier

About the Editors and Contributors 329

Index 335