

WBI LEARNING RESOURCES SERIES

Local Approaches to Environmental Compliance

Japanese Case Studies and Lessons for Developing Countries

Edited by

Adriana Bianchi

Wilfrido Cruz

Masahisa Nakamura

The World Bank
Washington, D.C.

Bibliothek Wasser und Umwelt
(TU Darmstadt)

61540725

Contents

Foreword	v
Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
About the Editors and Contributors	xi
1. Environmental Compliance: Case Studies from Japan and Their Relevance to East Asian Developing Countries	1
Adriana Bianchi, Wilfrido Cruz, and Masahisa Nakamura
2. Successful Air Pollution Control in Japan: History and Implications	19
Ryo Fujikura
3. Water Management Standards and Environmental Compliance in Japan at the National and Prefectural Levels	53
Thomas J. Ballatore, Victor S. Muhandiki, and Masahisa Nakamura
4. Local Efforts to Control Water Pollution: Case Study of a Metal-Plating Industry in the Shiga Prefecture	69
Victor S. Muhandiki, Thomas J. Ballatore, and Masahisa Nakamura
5. Economic Incentives to Promote Compliance: Japan's Environmental Soft Loan Program	89
Akihisa Mori, Soo Cheol Lee, and Kazuhiro Ueta
6. The Link between Compliance at the Local Level and Global Environmental Goals: Waste Reduction Measures in Nagoya City	101
Kazuhiro Ueta
7. Conclusion: Lessons Learned on the Importance of Local Initiatives	115
Adriana Bianchi, Wilfrido Cruz, and Masahisa Nakamura
Appendix A. Summaries of Reviews of Japanese Case Studies	121