

From Martial Law to Martial Law Politics in the Punjab, 1919–1958

Syed Nur Ahmad

EDITED BY CRAIG BAXTER

from a translation from the Urdu by Mahmud Ali

Contents

Preface

xi

PART I MARTIAL LAW AND CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

1	Background to Pakistan	1
2	An Eyewitness Account of the 1919 Martial Law	8
3	The Act of 1919 and the Non-Cooperation Movement	16
4	Election Scenes in Punjabi Villages	25
5	The Lahore Session of the Muslim League and the Beginning of a New Era	27
6	Conflict Between Shuddhi and Tabligh	33
7	The New Recruit in Mr. Jinnah's Party	34
8	The 21-Day Fast of Mahatma Gandhi	37
	Notes	39

PART II DYARCHY AND THE UNIONIST PARTY

9	Punjab Politics: Fazl-i-Husain, and the Unionist Party	49
10	The First All-Parties Conference	54
11	The Tug of War Between Malcolm Hailey and Fazl-i-Husain	57
12	1926: A Dramatic Session of the Central Assembly	61
13	The Delhi Proposals, the Nehru Report and the All-Parties Muslim Conference	63
14	The Muslim Political Camp United Again	70
15	The Resolution to Boycott the Simon Commission	72
16	The Tumultuous Tour of the Simon Commission	74
17	The Submission of the Punjab Government and Fazli's Dissent	76
18	Bhagat Singh's Bomb and Ilmuddin's Dagger	79
19	The First Batch of Revolutionaries is Caught	84
20	The Round Table Conference and Gandhi's Dandi March	86
21	The Allahabad Address of Allama Iqbal	88

22	The Round Table Conferences and the Hindu-Muslim Problem	90
23	How the Frontier was Pushed into the Congress Lap	98
24	Disarray in the Muslim League Organization	100
25	Civil Disobedience and the Communal Award	102
26	The Same Goal and the Same Path Again: The Third Round Table Conference	106
	Notes	110

PART III PROVINCIAL AUTONOMY AND THE MUSLIM LEAGUE

27	Unionist Party Intrigues Against Fazl-i-Husain	125
28	Shahidganj and the Majlis-i-Ahrar	128
29	The Last Meeting Between Jinnah and Sir Fazl-i-Husain	134
30	A Full-Fledged Attack on Muslim Nationalism, the Sikandar-Jinnah Pact and the New Political Front of the Muslims	140
31	World War II and the Lahore Resolution	151
32	The Political Struggle During the War and the Cripps Proposals	157
33	Glimpses of Provincial Politics	163
34	The Rajaji Formula, Gandhi-Jinnah Talks and the Simla Conference	169
35	New Elections Vindicate the Claim of the Qaid-i-Azam	176
	Notes	180

PART IV PARTITION

36	The Cabinet Mission Plan	197
37	The Decision for Direct Action	203
38	Political Trickery on the Interim Government	211
39	Who was the Ticketless Traveler on the Bus?	219
40	Trouble on the Provincial Fronts	223
41	The Congress Moves Toward Accepting Partition	227
42	The Arrival of Mountbatten and the Acceptance of the Pakistan Plan	229
43	Mountbatten's Struggle for the Dual Governor Generalship	241
44	Problems of Partition	243
45	Mountbatten's Award with Radcliffe's Pen	245
46	Rivers of Blood in the Path of Freedom	251
47	The Two-Man Boundary Force	257
48	The Accession of Kashmir	264
	Notes	270

PART V
PARLIAMENTARY DEMOCRACY TRIED

49	The Reorganization of the Muslim League in Pakistan	283
50	Glimpses of 1948: Disorder in the Provinces	286
51	The Last Ziarat at Ziarat	294
52	The Period of Liaqat: Strong Center, Provincial Chaos	296
53	The Foreign Policy of Liaqat Ali - What Were the Reasons for His Assassination?	307
54	Prime Minister Nazimuddin and Governor General Ghulam Muhammad - the Beginning of Palace Intrigues	313
55	The East Pakistan Election: a Period of Bloodshed	323
	Notes	327

PART VI
PARLIAMENTARY DEMOCRACY FAILED

56	The Nehru-Bogra Compromise	339
57	The Constituent Assembly and the Governor General - Attack and Counterattack	341
58	The New Constituent Assembly and Palace Collusions	347
59	Speedy Constitution Making	351
60	The Republican Party	355
61	New Crises in East Pakistan	361
62	Chaudhury Muhammad Ali Resigns and Suhrawardy Replaces Him	363
63	The Annual Bargaining Sessions of the West Pakistan Assembly	365
64	Seven Years of Foreign Policy	371
65	Suhrawardy Resigns and Chundrigar Comes and Goes	377
66	The Last Cabinet of the Parliamentary Era	383
67	Struggle for Power in East Pakistan	388
68	The Last President of the Muslim League	397
69	Noon's Last Try	401
70	Military Revolution	402
	Notes	407

APPENDICES

The Jinnah-Sikandar Pact [by Syed Nur Ahmad]	417
The Sikandar-Jinnah Pact [by Malik Sir Khizr Hayat Khan Tiwana]	429
Bibliographic Note	435
Index	437