

Irving Fisher

(1867–1947)

Arthur Hadley

(1856–1930)

Ragnar Frisch

(1895–1973)

Friedrich von Hayek

(1899–1992)

Allyn Young

(1876–1929)

Ugo Mazzola

(1863–1899)

Edited by

Mark Blaug

Professor Emeritus, University of London

An Elgar Reference Collection

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	ix
1. William R. Allen (1977), 'Irving Fisher, F.D.R., and the Great Depression', History of Political Economy , 9 (4), Winter, 560–87	1
2. John H. Crockett, Jr. (1980), 'Irving Fisher on the Financial Economics of Uncertainty', History of Political Economy , 12 (1), Spring, 65–82	29
3. Melvin Cross and Robert B. Ekelund, Jr. (1980), 'A.T. Hadley on Monopoly Theory and Railway Regulation: An American Contribution to Economic Analysis and Policy', History of Political Economy , 12 (2), Summer, 214–33	47
4. Jens Christopher Andvig (1981), 'Ragnar Frisch and Business Cycle Research During the Interwar Years', History of Political Economy , 13 (4), Winter, 695–725	67
5. Paul B. Trescott (1982), 'Discovery of the Money-Income Relationship in the United States, 1921–1944', History of Political Economy , 14 (1), Spring, 65–88	98
6. Charles P. Blicht (1983), 'Allyn A. Young: A Curious Case of Professional Neglect', History of Political Economy , 15 (1), Spring, 1–24	122
7. Michael Hudson (1985), 'German Economists and the Depression of 1929–1933', History of Political Economy , 17 (1), Spring, 35–50	146
8. Laurence S. Moss and Karen I. Vaughn (1986), 'Hayek's Ricardo Effect: A Second Look', History of Political Economy , 18 (4), Winter, 545–65	162
9. Orhan Kayaalp (1988), 'Ugo Mazzola and the Italian Theory of Public Goods', History of Political Economy , 20 (1), Spring, 15–25	183
Name Index	195