

GENDERING DISGUST
IN MEDIEVAL RELIGIOUS POLEMIC

ALEXANDRA CUFFEL

University of Notre Dame Press
Notre Dame, Indiana

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Abbreviations	xiii
List of Illustrations	xv
Transliteration	xvii
Introduction	1

PART I

From Divine Incorporation to Bodily Insult in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages

CHAPTER ONE

The Stench of Humanity: Corporeality and the Divine in Late Antique Religious Thought	21
--	----

CHAPTER TWO

The Seeds of Rotten Fruit: Corporeal Disgust and Impurity as Late Antique and Early Medieval Religious Polemic	47
---	----

PART II

Twelfth–Fourteenth Centuries: Intensification and Collision of Jewish-Christian-Muslim Polemic

CHAPTER THREE

Twelfth- and Thirteenth-Century Contexts 87

CHAPTER FOUR

Filthy Womb and Foul Believers: The Incarnation and Holy Spaces in the Jewish-Christian-Muslim Debate 117

CHAPTER FIVE

Impure, Sickly Bodies 156

CHAPTER SIX

Signs of the Beast: Animal Metaphors as Maledictions of Resistance and Oppression 198

Conclusion 240

Notes 245

Bibliography 353

Index 411