

The Development of Political Science

A Comparative Survey

Edited by David Easton, John G. Gunnell
and Luigi Graziano

London and New York

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction
John G. Gunnell and David Easton	1
1 The historiography of American political science
John G. Gunnell	13
2 The development of political science: methodological problems of comparative research
Erkki Berndtson	34
3 The interaction of the state and political science in Canada: a preliminary mapping
John E. Trent and Michael Stein	59
4 Cultural and contextual constraints upon the development of political science in Great Britain
Jack Hayward	93
5 Political development and political science in West Germany
Hans Kastendiek	108
6 The development and institutionalization of political science in Italy
Luigi Graziano	127
7 French political science and its 'subfields': some reflections on the intellectual organization of the discipline in relation to its historical and social situation
Jean Leca	147

8	Political science in the Nordic countries Dag Anckar	187
9	Political science in contemporary Spain: an overview Josep M. Vallès	201
10	The sociology of political science in the People's Republic of China Zhengyuan Fu	223
11	Political science in 'Anglophone' Africa: its context and developmental logic in historical perspective L. Adèle Jinadu	252
12	Political science in the United States: past and present David Easton	275
	Index	292