

JUHANI LINDGREN

UNITY OF ALL CHRISTIANS IN LOVE AND MISSION

The Ecumenical Method
of
Kenneth Scott Latourette

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	9
1. Introduction	11
1.1. Object, method, and sources of study	13
1.2. Earlier research on Latourette	20
2. Kenneth Scott Latourette and his environment	31
2.1. The evangelical tradition: a modified factor	33
2.2. The missionary movement: personal obligation and triumphant confidence	39
2.3. Christianity in its social and national context: qualified optimism	46
2.4. Historical scholarship: theistic presuppositions revealed	61
3. The ecumenical involvement of Kenneth Scott Latourette	77
3.1. Interdenominational student work and voluntary student movements	79
3.2. Global mission and the International Missionary Council	86
3.3. The Ecumenical Movement and the World Council of Churches	101
4. Origins of Christian variety: acceptable diversity and unacceptable division	111
4.1. Diversification through interaction between Christianity and its environment	113
4.2. Growing diversity through new movements: an ecumenical paradox	122
4.3. Fissiparousness through "private judgment": the Protestant dilemma	129
4.4. Division through sin: the basic problem and a quest for grace	136

5. Doctrine and creedal formulations as an ecumenical problem	143
5.1. The "core" of Christianity	145
5.1.1. The general nature of the "core"	145
5.1.2. The divisibility of the "core"	152
5.1.2.1. The undetermined comprehensiveness of the "core"	152
5.1.2.2. The reception of doctrinal loci by the "majority" of Christians	155
5.1.3. The "core" and Christian vitality	158
5.1.3.1. The "core" as the seat of vitality	158
5.1.3.2. Assessing distance from the "core"	162
5.1.3.3. The problem of heresy	165
5.2. Younger Churches and historical Christianity	168
5.3. The nature and role of creedal formulations	179
5.4. The nature and role of doctrinal discussions	188
5.5. Unity in doctrine	197
 6. Unity and mission: crucial reciprocity	 209
6.1. Unity born out of mission: genetic relationship	211
6.2. Unity aimed at mission: final relationship	224
6.3. Unity and mission necessitated by the Gospel: imperative relationship	235
 7. The basic modes of Christian unity: the pre-eminence of love	 243
7.1. Levels of unity	245
7.1.1. Unity in the mystical Body of Christ	245
7.1.2. Unity in love and spirit	251
7.1.2.1. Origin of love: primacy of God's love	251
7.1.2.2. Nature of unity in love	255
7.1.2.3. Unity in love and "organization": compatibility and incompatibility	258
7.1.2.4. Unity in love: a missiological dimension	264
7.1.3. Unity in cooperation	267
7.1.3.1. Cooperation in world mission: International Missionary Council	267
7.1.3.2. Cooperation with "liberals" and "fundamentalists"	273
7.1.3.3. Cooperation within and between denominations	279
7.1.3.4. Expanding the scope of cooperation	282
7.2. Ecumenical patterns: problems and solutions	288

7.2.1. The problem of reunion	288
7.2.2. The impasse of other old solutions	294
7.2.2.1. The old roads: less unity and more division	294
7.2.2.2. Single ecclesiastical structure as exemplified by the Church of Rome	296
7.2.2.3. Organic unions of churches	303
7.2.2.4. The Holy Communion	304
7.2.2.5. Historic episcopate and other old roads	306
7.2.3. Denominational and global unity	308
7.2.3.1. Denominations and the universal Church: priority of loyalties	308
7.2.3.2. Unity in diversity: additive complementarity	317
8. Summary	329
9. Sources and bibliography	337
9.1. Sources	339
9.1.1. Unpublished material	339
9.1.2. Published material: Latourette's writings	353
9.2. Bibliography	361
9.2.1. Unpublished material	361
9.2.2. Published material	362
10. Abbreviations	390
11. Index of persons	393