

THE STRUGGLE FOR EQUALITY

Urban Women Workers in Prestate
Israeli Society

Deborah Bernstein

PRAEGER

New York
Westport, Connecticut
London

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
Introduction: Inequality between Women and Men	1
Notes	9
1 The Difficulties of Partnership	11
On the Eve of Revolution	11
The First Pioneers	16
Notes	23
2 Growth and Social Experimentation (1919-1926)	27
The Women Workers as Part of the Workers' Community in Palestine	27
Employment: Construction or Domestic Service	46
The Organization of Women Workers—Creating Training Facilities and Collective Frameworks	57
Summary	65
Notes	66
3 The Crisis—Attempts to Cope and Their Failure (1926-1932)	72
The Crisis	72
On the Job: The Woman Worker and the Housemaid	74
Women and Men—The Price of Becoming a Family	85
Organizing—Aspirations for Autonomy	90
Summary	108
Notes	108
4 Increasing Inequality (1932-1939)	118
Growth and Diversification of Economy and Society	118
Employment—Slump in the Midst of Prosperity	123
Organization—Holding on to the Status Quo	132
Notes	150

5	Conclusion	155
	Prevailing Attitudes and Conceptions	155
	Political and Economic Factors	156
	The Activities of the Women Workers' Movement	157
	Notes	160
	Epilogue: Fifty Years Later	161
	Work	163
	Family Life	167
	Organization	169
	Notes	175
	APPENDIXES: DOCUMENTS	179
	A. Young Women from the Second Aliyah	181
	B. Personal Experiences from the Diary of R.	184
	C. The Cooperatives	187
	D. Women's Collectives	189
	E. "The Worker's Wife"	192
	Bibliography	197
	Index	205
	About the Author	209