

i-mode Strategy

Takeshi Natsuno

Managing Director, i-mode Strategy

NTT DoCoMo, Inc.

Japan

Translated by Ruth South McCreery

The Word Works, Ltd.

Yokohama, Japan

WILEY

Contents

About the Author	v
Foreword to the Japanese Edition	vii
Foreword to the English-language Edition	xi
Color Plates	xxi
1 Success	1
1.1 IT Businesses Grow far More Than Expected or do not Grow at All	1
1.1.1 The Pace Outstripped Our Expectations	1
1.1.1.1 One Million in 20 Days: 50,000 New Subscribers a Day	2
1.1.1.2 One-Third of All Internet Users	3
1.2 i-mode: Born with a Sense of Crisis	4
1.2.1 A Multidisciplinary Team	4
1.2.2 Towards the Second S-Curve	5
1.2.2.1 From Volume to Value	6
1.3 Evolution of a Text-Based e-Mail Culture	7
1.3.1 From One-Way to Interactive	7
1.4 Beyond Talk	9
1.4.1 Content-Packed: The Virtuous Cycle	9
1.4.2 Active Users: 95%	10
1.4.3 i-mode in Mind When They Sign Up	11

1.4.4	Information Close to Home Works	13
1.4.5	Average Monthly Usage Fee is over ¥2000	15
1.4.5.1	Increase in DoCoMo's Operating Revenues	15
1.4.5.2	Internet Services That Need a Mobile Phone	16
1.4.5.3	Preventing Churning	18
1.4.6	Market Share Bounces Back	18
1.5	New Services Emerge	19
1.6	A Business Model the Wired Internet Cannot Support	21
1.6.1	Birth of a ¥30 Billion Annual Market for Fee-Based Services	22
1.6.2	Customer Retention Programs in Use	23
1.6.3	Stimulating Replacement Demand for Mobile Phones	24
1.6.3.1	Lightness Ceased to be the Decisive Feature	26
1.6.4	Uniquely Successful: Service Providers in Other Countries Not Doing Well	27
1.7	All Eyes on DoCoMo	28
2	Concepts	31
2.1	Why Has Our Success in the IT Business Been so Overwhelming?	31
2.1.1	It is no Longer a Telecom Age	31
2.2	Differences in Platform are Meaningless	33
2.2.1	Customer Participation Boosts the Attractiveness of Services	34
2.2.1.1	Customers and Service Providers are in the Same Team – That is Internet Thinking	35
2.2.2	Alliances Create New Markets	36
2.2.3	Opportunities for Existing Businesses	37
2.3	Why is the Win so Overwhelming?	38
2.4	Life Today: Complex Systems	39
2.4.1	Self-Organization in Geese	39
2.4.2	Evaluating a Service in Terms of the Service as a Whole	41
2.4.3	One Technology Cannot Lead a New Service	42
2.4.4	DoCoMo's Role is to Coordinate the System as a Whole	43

3 Practice	45
3.1 Most People are Conservative; They Reject What Seems too New	45
3.1.1 There Will be a 'Wallet PC' Someday	45
3.1.1.1 Add-Ons Stimulated the Appetite to Develop	46
3.1.1.2 One Industry Alone Could not do It	47
3.1.2 How to Kick-Start the Process?	48
3.1.2.1 Language Selection: A Keystroke	50
3.1.2.2 Our De Facto Standard Technology Lures Content	51
3.1.2.3 A Lesson from a US Study	51
3.1.2.4 Kindergarten English? or French?	52
3.1.2.5 Thousands of Ringtones in No Time	53
3.1.2.6 Unusual Phones do not Sell	55
3.1.2.7 It's a Mobile Phone, Stupid	56
3.1.2.8 Using Existing Web Servers	56
3.1.2.9 Minimizing the Need to Change Systems	57
3.1.3 A Business Concept That Attracts Partners in Doves	58
3.2 DoCoMo's Role: Two Points Only	59
3.3 Sharing the Revenues Matters	61
3.4 Keep Service Providers Motivated	62
3.4.1 Four Conditions for Attractive Content	63
3.4.2 Nationwide Meetings Help Develop an Eye for Content	64
3.5 What is Internet-Style Marketing?	65
3.5.1 The Concept Behind the Commercial with Hirose	65
3.5.2 Who is the Lead Goose?	66
3.6 Finding i-mode Champions	67
4 Alliances	69
4.1 Win-Win Relationships	69
4.1.1 Sharing the Profits with Partners Who Share the Risk	69
4.2 Different Industries, Different Types of Alliances	70
4.2.1 Technology Alliances for the Promotion of Mobile Phones	71
4.2.1.1 Music and Color Displays	71
4.2.1.2 Openness Enables Personalized Phones	73
4.2.1.3 Java: Continuing Use of De Facto Standards	73

4.2.1.4	Calculating Backwards from Vision to Start of Negotiations	75
4.2.1.5	Mobile Phones and Services, Two Sides of the Same Coin	76
4.2.2	A Revenue Model that Encourages Service Providers	77
4.2.2.1	Two Benefits from Free Sites	79
4.2.2.2	Service Providers Acquire Valuable Marketing Information	80
4.2.2.3	The Advertising Business, Data Customization Extension	81
4.2.2.4	Portal Customization	82
4.2.2.5	Advertising Tailored to Hobbies and Interests is Valuable Information	84
4.2.2.6	Our Net-Only Bank is the Leader of the Pack	85
4.2.3	i-mode Makes Daily Life More Convenient, More Fun, More Affluent	85
4.2.3.1	PlayStation Alliance Promotes Home Use of i-mode	88
4.2.3.2	Game Machines – the Most Familiar Form of Access	89
4.2.3.3	A Packet and Storage Strategy that Makes i-mode a Home Entertainment Platform	90
4.2.3.4	PlayStation Users Continue to Increase	91
4.3	Alliances with Broadcasters	92
4.4	Seamless Links between Mobile and Fixed-Line Networks	93
4.5	Future Plans Call for Adding PC-Internet Users	94
4.6	Point & Mobile Strategy and Convenience Store Alliances	94
4.6.1	Convenience Stores Benefit by Staying in Touch with Customers	96
4.7	Printing: Our Next Project	97
4.8	Alliances to Strengthen Electronic Settlement	99
5	Effects	101
5.1	A Team of Individuals Working with the Same Ideas, Hand-in-Hand, is Stronger Than One Following a Single Boss	101
5.2	The Information Convenience Store and Gemlike Speciality Sites	102

- 5.2.1 Eleven Days Later – A Search Engine 104
- 5.3 More Corporate Subscribers than We Had Expected 104
- 5.4 Motorcycle Couriers and Exit Interviews 105
- 5.5 Self-Organization in Off-the-Shelf Software 106
- 5.6 Another Effect of Adopting HTML 106
- 5.7 A Fast Conversion from a Telecom
to an Internet Company 108
- 5.8 An Organization of Empowered Individuals is a More Powerful Organization 109
- 5.9 Accelerated Mobile Phone Evolution 110
- 5.10 Like the Auto Industry in the 1980s 111
- 5.11 The Media Rush 112
- 5.12 Word of Mouth: Self-Organization among Individuals 114

- 6 The Future 115
 - 6.1 Emergence and Self-Organization on a Global Scale Gives Rise to Greater Positive Feedback 115
 - 6.2 The IMT-2000 Age is Drawing Near 115
 - 6.3 3G Marketing: ‘First, the Applications’ 117
 - 6.4 Seconds of Real Enjoyment 118
 - 6.5 Striking a Balance between Subscribers
and Service Providers 119
 - 6.6 e-Money from Mobile Phones 120
 - 6.6.1 The Role of Java in Popularizing e-Money 121
 - 6.6.1.1 The Wireless Interface 123
 - 6.7 Alliances with Home Appliance Manufacturers: Another
Possibility 124
 - 6.8 For Export: Our Business Model 125
 - 6.8.1 Speaking with Greater Authority 126
 - 6.8.2 First, International Roaming 127
 - 6.8.3 Toward a Complex System on a Global Scale 128

- Appendix 1 History of i-mode 129

- Appendix 2 Proposal for the Basic i-mode Concept 133
 - Memorandum 133
 - Concerning the Gateway Project Plan 133
 - 1. Basic Gateway Project Concepts 133

2.	Gateway Services Seen from Various Perspectives	135
3.	Schedule	136

Appendix 3 The i-mode Menu List	139
--	------------

Further Reading	147
------------------------	------------

Afterword to the Japanese Edition	149
--	------------

Index	155
--------------	------------