

Britain

James O'Driscoll

Oxford University Press 1995

Contents

Introduction

6

1 Country and people

8

Geographically speaking · Politically speaking ·
The four nations · The dominance of England ·
National loyalties

2 History

15

Prehistory · The Roman period (43–410) ·
The Germanic invasions (410–1066) · The medieval period (1066–1485) · The sixteenth century ·
The seventeenth century · The eighteenth century ·
The nineteenth century · The twentieth century

3 Geography

31

Climate · Land and settlement · The environment and pollution · London · Southern England ·
The midlands · Northern England · Scotland ·
Wales · Northern Ireland

4 Identity

42

Ethnic identity: the native British · Ethnic identity:
the non-native British · The family · Geographical identity · Class · Men and women · Religious and political identity · Social and everyday contacts ·
Identity in Northern Ireland · Being British

5 Attitudes

56

Stereotypes and change · English versus British ·
Multiculturalism · Conservatism · Being different ·
The love of nature · The love of animals · Formality and informality · Public spiritedness and amateurism · Privacy and sex

6 Political life

67

The public attitude to politics · The style of democracy · The constitution · The style of politics ·
The party system · The modern situation

7 The monarchy

77

The appearance · The reality · The role of the monarch · The value of the monarchy · The future of the monarchy

8 The government

82

The cabinet · The Prime Minister · The civil service ·
Central and local government · Local government services

9 Parliament

90

The atmosphere of Parliament · An MP's life ·
Parliamentary business · The party system in Parliament · The House of Lords

10 Elections

98

The system · Formal arrangements · The campaign · Polling day · Election night · Recent results and the future

11 The law

106

The police and the public · Crime and criminal procedure · The system of justice · The legal profession

12 International relations

113

The end of empire · The armed forces · Transatlantic relations · The sovereignty of the union: Europe · The sovereignty of the union: Scotland and Wales · The sovereignty of the union: Northern Ireland

13 Religion

121

Religion and politics · Anglicanism · Catholicism · Other conventional Christian churches · Other religions, churches and religious movements

14 Education

130

Historical background · Organization · Style · Recent developments · School life · Public exams · Education beyond sixteen

15 The economy and everyday life

141

Earning money · Work organizations · The structure of trade and industry · The distribution of wealth · Finance and investment · Spending money: shopping · Shop opening hours

16 The media

151

The importance of the national press · The two types of national newspaper · The characteristics of the national press: politics · The characteristics of the national press: sex and scandal · The BBC · Television: organization · Television: style

17 Transport

162

On the road · Public transport in towns and cities · Public transport between towns and cities · The story of the channel · Air and water

18 Welfare

168

The benefits system · Social services and charities · The national health service · The medical profession

19 Housing

174

Houses, not flats · Private property and public property · The importance of 'home' · Individuality and conformity · Interiors: the importance of cosiness · Owning and renting · Homelessness

20 Food and drink

184

Attitudes to food · Eating out · Alcohol · Pubs

21 Sport and competition

191

A national passion · The social importance of sport · Cricket · Football · Rugby · Animals in sport · Other sports · Gambling

22 The arts

201

The arts in society · The characteristics of British arts and letters · Theatre and cinema · Music · Literature · The fine arts

23 Holidays and special occasions

208

Traditional seaside holidays · Modern holidays · Christmas and New Year · Other notable annual occasions