

PENETRATING THE INTERNATIONAL MARKET

Theoretical Considerations and a Mexican Case Study

David R. Mares

Columbia University Press

NEW YORK 1987

CONTENTS

	Pages
Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Abbreviations	xv
 Introduction
1 The Political Economy of International Competitiveness: Theory and a Framework for Analysis	3
 I A Mexican State-Grower Alliance for Profits and Control
2 Agribusiness and the U.S.–Mexico Fresh Winter Vegetable Trade	31
3 The State-Grower Alliance: Convergent and Divergent Interests	59
 II Domestic Challenges to Production
4 Competition for Water	93
5 Access to Land	111
6 Managing Labor Costs	139
 III Foreign Challenges to Ownership and Trade
7 Subordination of Foreign Investment	169
8 Transnational Alliances in International Trade	203
 Conclusion
9 Penetrating the International Market: Some Comparative Evidence	229
 Notes	 243
Bibliography	273
Index	291