

Ikechukwu Mike Nduka

AL-‘ASABIYYA
A conflicting socio-religious
Factor in the modern Times?

Approximation of Nigeria’s
"groups-in-group" syndrome

TABLE OF CONTENTS

General Introduction	10
Abbreviations and reference words	19
Chapter one
Ibn Khaldun, a North African Muslim Thinker?	20
1.1 Biographical Note	20
1.1.1 Life and Career	21
1.1.2 Education and major works.	26
The Muquaddimah:
Analysis of Ibn Khaldun's theory of History	27
1.2.1 The anatomy of the Muquaddimah	29
1.2.2 The locus of Ibn Khaldun's theory of history	33
1.3 Society, social change and historical cycle	35
1.3.1 Ibn Khaldun's societal classification	35
1.3.2 Social change and its consequences	39
1.4 The principle of 'Asabiyya	42
1.4.1 The synthesis - embodiment or legacy of 'Asabiyya	50
1.4.2 Demonstration of historical cycle and effects of 'Asabiyya with Arab-Islamic history	51
1.4.3 The effects of diverse 'Asabiyya and the future of Arab unity	57
1.5 Summary of Ibn Khaldun's line of thoughts and influences	63
1.5.1 Ibn Khaldun's importance and his heritage of philosophy	70
1.5.2 Possible sources of Ibn Khaldun's social theory	72
1.5.3 'Asabiyya and Religion	77
1.5.3.1 The necessity of controlling 'Asabiyya	82
1.5.4 Synthesis of the above expositions	86
1.6 Relevance of Ibn Khaldun's ideas in the 20 th Century	93
1.6.1 Preludes to understanding 'Asabiyya in modern times	95

1.6.2	Influences of solidarity and group feelings in modern times	100
1.6.3	Directions of 'Asabiyya in the modern times	108
	– Separist movements	108
	– Rivalry for autonomy	108
	– Conquest	109
	– Survival	109
1.7	Appendage 1.1	112
1.7.1	Appendage 1.2	120

Chapter two

	'Asabiyya in the context of contemporary socio-religious thought of sub-saharan Africa	127
2.1	Introduction	127
2.2	Some basic features of Africa and its religious receptivity	135
2.2.1	Risks and challenges of religious consciousness	137
2.2.2	What is "African religious consciousness"?	141
2.2.3	Nature of African theism through the analysis of two models	146
2.2.3.1	1 st model: The supreme Being in Igbo world view	150
2.2.3.2	2 nd model: Supreme Being in Kalabari world view	153
2.2.3.3	Summary of 2.2.3	156
2.3	Islam, Christianity and ATR: Confrontation or co-existence?	162
2.4	'Asabiyya and Colonialism	172
2.4.1	Non-religious colonialism and African religious diversity	178
2.4.2	Religion as motor and victim of 'Asabiyya	182
2.4.2.1	The Europeans and Christianity in Africa	182
2.4.2.2	The Arabs and Islam in Africa	190
2.4.2.3	Effects of Christian and Islamic presence in/on Africa	194
2.5	Still the aftermath of colonialism? Or what roles religion must play in 20 th and 21 st century Africa?	202

2.5.1	The dissipation of hegemony and the quest for a realizable unity of purpose	205
2.5.1.1	Comparative religion and the quest for a unity of purpose	205
	– Adaptability	215
	– Cooperation	215
	– Hospitality and Moderation	216
	– Truthfulness and Honesty	217
	– Self and Others	218
2.5.2	Social and economic openness contra religious bigotry	220
2.5.3	Synthesis	229
2.6	Summary of Chapter Two	234
2.7	Appendage 2.1	246

Chapter three

	'Asabiyya: A conflicting socio-religious Factor in Nigeria?	252
3.1	Pre-independent Nigeria and the post-independent Nigerans	252
3.2	The Ethnic Groups and their Socio-religious Features	258
3.2.0	The western Sudan: Its structures, and points of interest	262
3.2.1	The Northern Ethnic Group	268
3.2.2	The Western Ethnic Group	273
3.2.2.1	Yoruba Traditional Belief between Islam and Christianity	277
3.2.2.2	Explanatory Summary to 3.2.2	285
3.2.3	The Middle Belt Group	287
3.2.4	The Eastern Group	290
3.2.4.1	The Nri myth of Origin	296
3.3	General summary: The utopic "group-in-groups" syndrom	300
3.3.1	Cartographic interpretations of Nigerian 'asabiyyat?	308

3.3.2	Why attempts at solution became unsuccessful ...	312
3.3.3	Articulation of 'Asabiyya, religious conflicts in the modern Nigerian constitution(s)	315
3.3.4	The case of Nigeria: critical appraisal of Ibn Khaldun's principle of 'Asabiyya?	325
3.4	Appendage 3.1	329
Chapter four
General comparative Conclusion		330
4.1	Articulation contextualization	330
4.2	Further approximation of 'Asabiyya in modern world history	334
4.2.1	Change of paradigms as nature of 'Asabiyya?	339
4.3	Further approximation of 'Asabiyya in the history of Nigeria: Anatomy of solidarity, legitimacy of religio-ethnic conflicts, or the search for an alternative?	354
4.3.1	Prognosis for the Future	363
4.4	Epilogue	379
4.5	Suggestions for a possible and positive utilization of 'Asabiyya	386
4.6	Appendage 4.1	397
Chapter five
Bibliography and useful Literatures for further Reading		400
5.1	Studies on Ibn Khaldun, Islamic Religion, History, Culture and Politics	400
5.2	Other Sources	402
5.3	Studies on Africa, Sub-saharan African Society, History Culture, Religion and Interaction	403
5.4	Studies on Nigerian History, Religion, Culture and Politics	406
5.5	Related Journals for further Reading	407
5.6	Some Articles on Nigerian socio-religious Politics	407