

Unions, Unemployment and Innovation

Eric Batstone
and
Stephen Gourlay

With Hugo Levie and Roy Moore

Basil Blackwell

Contents

Preface	ix
Glossary of Abbreviations	x
1 Introduction	1
Recession and Trade Unionism	1
Trade Unions	18
The Question of New Technology	34
The Research	39
The Study Outlined	42
Part I Union Organization and Patterns of Labour Regulation	43
2 Union Organization and its Context	45
Context	48
Management's Approach to Trade Unions	60
Trade Union Organization at the Workplace	69
Links with the Larger Union	92
Patterns of Influence within the Workplace	99
Conclusions	107
3 Labour Relations and Trade Union Influence	110
Trends in the Use of Secondary Labour	111
Individualistic Labour Strategies	117
Payment Systems	120
Scientific Management	122
Intensification of Work	124
Patterns in the Labour Relations
Strategy of Management	125
The Level and Range of Bargaining	127
Trade Union Influence	137
Industrial Action	143
Conclusions	148

Part II The Case of Technical Change	151
4 The Nature of Technical Change	153
The History of Technical Change	159
Planned Technical Change	161
The Nature of Technical Change	164
Changes in Capacity and Products	171
Employment Effects of New Technology	174
Conclusions	183
5 Trade Unions and the Process of Technical Change	185
The Structure of Bargaining and Union
Decision-making over New Technology	189
Areas and Issues in Bargaining over New Technology	195
A Note on New Technology Agreements	211
6 The Effects of Technical Change on Job Content and Rewards	215
Changes in the Allocation of Functions	221
The Impact of Technical Change on Job Experience	225
Technical Change and Financial Reward	234
Conclusions	238
7 The Impact of Technical Change on Trade Union Organization	240
Trade Union Organization in New Technology Areas	244
Reported Effects of Technical Change upon Union Organization	251
More General Effects upon Trade Union Organization	259
Conclusions	261
8 Conclusions	263
Some General Considerations on Trends in Labour Relations	263
The Question of Technical Change	272
Union Structure and Strategy: A Cross-national Perspective	278
Appendix: Survey and Case-Study Details	292
The Survey	293
The Case Studies	298
Questionnaire	300
Bibliography	309
Index	314