

The Legacy of Nazi Occupation

Patriotic Memory and National Recovery in Western Europe, 1945–1965

Pieter Lagrou

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
Acknowledgements	ix
List of abbreviations	xi
Introduction	1
Part I Troublesome heroes: the post-war treatment of resistance veterans	19
1 Appropriating victory and re-establishing the state	21
2 Heroes of a nation: Belgium and France	38
3 A nation of heroes: the Netherlands	59
Part II Repatriating displaced populations from Germany	79
4 Displaced populations	81
5 The challenge to the post-war state: Belgium and the Netherlands	91
6 Pétain's exiles and De Gaulle's deportees	106
Part III The legacy of forced economic migration	129
7 Labour and total war	131
8 Moral panic: 'the soap, the suit and above all the Bible'	144
9 Patriotic scrutiny	157
10 'Deportation': the defence of the labour conscripts	167

Part IV Martyrs and other victims of Nazi persecution	197
11 Plural persecutions	199
12 National martyrdom	210
13 Patriotic memories and the genocide	251
14 Remembering the war and legitimising the post-war international order	262
Conclusion	292
Bibliography	307
Index	323