

Delores Joan Rogers

The American Empirical Movement in Theology

PETER LANG

New York • Bern • Frankfurt am Main • Paris

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	1
Basic Definitions	2
The Typology	5
1. The Functional Strand	7
2. The Rational Strand	9
3. The Mystical Strand	11
 MORDECAI KAPLAN	 17
Formative Influences	17
1. Jewish Theological Seminary	17
2. Biblical Exegesis	19
3. Sociology and Pragmatism	20
4. Ahad Ha-Am	29
Relation to Contemporary versions of Judaism	33
1. Reform Judaism	34
2. Neo-Orthodox Judaism	37
3. Conservative Judaism	41
Relation to the American Empirical Movement	43
Kaplan's Constructive Position	47
1. Major Concern	47
2. Scientific World View	49
3. Reevaluation	51
a. The People	55
b. The Land	59
c. Torah	63
d. "Two Civilizations"	66
e. God	69
 BERNARD MELAND	 105
Formative Influences	105
1. Early Chicago School	105
2. Influence of the Philosophers	112
Relation to the European Tradition	120
Relation to Contemporary Empirical Theologians	125
1. Wieman	125

2.	Hartshorne	128
Meland's	Constructive Position	132
1.	Theistic Naturalism	132
2.	Resources for Theology	134
3.	The Appreciative Consciousness	138
4.	Reconstructed Immanence	144
a.	Myth, Mythos and Culture	147
b.	Mythos and Logos	158
c.	Primary Document	161
d.	Formative Motif	163
e.	God	165
KAPLAN AND MELAND:	THEOLOGICAL STRUCTURE	179
Influence of the Traditions		185
1.	How is Salvation Mediated?	185
2.	What is the Relationship between God and Humanity?	192
3.	How is God Imaged?	204
THE FUTURE OF EMPIRICAL THEOLOGY		217
BIBLIOGRAPHY		227
Works of Mordecai M. Kaplan		227
Works of Bernard E. Meland		229
Selected References		232
INDEX		237