
The economics of the European Community

Ali M. El-Agraa

with edited contributions

FOURTH EDITION

Harvester Wheatsheaf

New York · London · Toronto · Sydney · Tokyo · Singapore

Contents

List of figures	xvi
List of tables	xviii
List of contributors	xxii
Preface to fourth edition	xxiii
Preface to third edition	xxvi
Preface to second edition	xxviii
Preface to first edition	xxix
List of abbreviations	xxxii
1 General introduction	1
A. M. El-Agraa
1.1 Economic integration and GATT rules	2
1.2 The global experience	3
1.3 The EC	9
1.4 The meaning of economic union	10
1.5 The possible economic gains from integration	13
1.6 Areas of economic enquiry	14
1.7 About this book	14
Notes	15
Appendix: GATT's Article XXIV	15
Part I Historical, institutional and statistical background	19
2 History and institutions of the EC	21
C. D. E. Collins
2.1 Organising Western Europe	21
2.2 The development of the EC	24

2.3	The European Union	27
2.4	The European Community	30
2.5	Foreign and security policies	40
2.6	Judicial and home affairs	41
	Guide to references	43
	A brief note on the main decision-taking procedures	43
3	The basic statistics of the EC	45
	A. M. El-Agraa
3.1	The basic statistics	45
3.1.1	Area, population, life and death	45
3.1.2	GNP and inflation	47
3.1.3	Work	48
3.1.4	Employment and unemployment	49
3.1.5	Demand	50
3.1.6	Government sector	51
3.1.7	Exports, imports and balance of payments	52
3.1.8	Education	52
3.1.9	Income distribution	53
3.1.10	Tariffs	53
3.2	Conclusion	53
	Appendix: The statistical tables	54
Part II	Theory and measurement	79
4	The theory of economic integration	83
	A. M. El-Agraa
4.1	The customs union aspects	84
4.1.1	The basic concepts	84
4.1.2	The Cooper – Massell criticism	86
4.1.3	Further contributions	86
4.1.4	Dynamic effects	91
4.1.5	Domestic distortions	93
4.1.6	Terms of trade effects	95
4.2	Customs unions versus free trade areas	100
4.3	Economic unions	101
4.4	Macroeconomics of integration	102
4.5	Economic integration in developing countries	103
4.6	Economic integration among communist countries	104
4.7	Conclusions	104
5	European monetary integration	106
	A. M. El-Agraa

5.1	What is monetary integration?	107
5.2	The gains and losses	109
5.3	European monetary integration	118
5.4	The Delors Report and the Maastricht Treaty	119
5.5	The transition to monetary integration	124
5.6	Tackling the transition problem	125
5.6.1	Monetary integration all at once	126
5.6.2	The step-by-step approach	127
5.6.3	Approaching the EMU via the 'snake'	128
5.6.4	Parallel currency proposals	128
5.7	The Bremen Declaration	129
5.8	Conclusion	131
6	Measuring the impact of economic integration	133
	A. M. El-Agraa
6.1	Nature of the problem	133
6.2	The effects on trade	137
6.3	The dynamic effects	138
6.4	Previous studies	138
6.4.1	Residual models	139
6.4.2	Analytic models	146
6.4.3	Dynamic studies	148
6.5	A critique of previous studies	149
6.6	The alternative	152
	Notes	153
7	The economics of the Single Market	155
	A. M. El-Agraa
7.1	The aspirations of the White Paper	155
7.2	Actions promised by the Commission	159
7.3	The expected benefits	160
7.3.1	The Cecchini estimates	160
7.3.2	The Baldwin estimates	163
7.4	Theoretical illustration	165
7.5	Reservations	167
7.6	Conclusion	169
Part III	Major EC Policies	171
8	EC competition policy	173
	F. McGowan
8.1	The rationale for competition policy	173
8.2	National competition policies	175

8.2.1	United Kingdom	176
8.2.2	Germany	176
8.2.3	Italy	177
8.2.4	France	177
8.3	The development of EC competition policy	177
8.4	EC competition rules and procedures	179
8.5	Current issues in EC competition policy	180
8.5.1	Article 85 and exemptions	181
8.5.2	Article 86	182
8.5.3	Article 92 and state aids	183
8.5.4	Article 90 and the treatment of public ownership and utility industries	184
8.5.5	Mergers	186
8.6	Problems of competition policy	187
8.7	Conclusion	188
9	EC industrial policy	190
	F. McGowan
9.1	The industrial policy debate	190
9.2	The EC industrial landscape	193
9.3	National industrial policies	194
9.4	The development of EC industrial policy	196
9.5	Issues in EC industrial policy	199
9.5.1	The Single Market	199
9.5.2	European technology policy	201
9.5.3	Trade policy and protectionism	202
9.6	Conclusion	202
10	The Common Agricultural Policy	204
	A. M. El-Agraa
10.1	General background	205
10.2	The problems of agriculture	205
10.3	Agricultural support policies	211
10.4	EC member policies	212
10.5	Objectives of the CAP	215
10.6	The CAP price support mechanism	218
10.7	The green money	219
10.8	Financing the CAP	221
10.9	Assessment	221
10.10	Conclusions	234
	Notes	234
11	The Common Fisheries Policy	236
	A. M. El-Agraa

11.1	Background	236
11.2	The policy	238
11.3	Developments in the CFP	242
11.4	Reservations	245
11.5	Conclusion	245
12	EC transport policy	247
	F. McGowan
12.1	The transport sector and transport policy	247
12.2	The development of EC transport policy	249
12.3	Transport policy and other EC policies	253
12.4	EC policy towards transport sectors	254
	12.4.1 Road transport	254
	12.4.2 Rail transport	255
	12.4.3 Shipping	257
	12.4.4 Air transport	259
12.5	Conclusions	263
13	EC energy policy	265
	F. McGowan
13.1	Past attempts and present successes	265
	13.1.1 The treaties and energy	265
	13.1.2 Policy efforts 1951–73	266
	13.1.3 Energy crises	267
	13.1.4 The new energy policy agenda: competition and the environment	269
13.2	The EC and the energy industries	274
	13.2.1 Coal	274
	13.2.2 Oil	277
	13.2.3 Natural gas	279
	13.2.4 Electricity	281
	13.2.5 Nuclear power	284
	13.2.6 Renewables and conservation	285
13.3	Conclusion	286
14	Tax harmonisation	288
	A. M. El-Agraa
14.1	The meaning of fiscal policy	288
14.2	The tax structure and its implications	290
14.3	The meaning of tax harmonisation	293
14.4	EC tax harmonisation experience	294
	14.4.1 The period leading to the SEA	294
	14.4.2 The period beginning with the SEA	299
14.5	Conclusions	304

	Note	304
15	The General Budget	306
	A. M. El-Agraa
	15.1 Expenditures	306
	15.2 Revenues	308
	15.3 Net contributions	309
	15.4 Budgetary transfers	309
	15.5 Developments prior to the SEA	312
	15.6 Most recent developments	314
	15.6.1 The 1988 Council decision	314
	15.6.2 Delors II package	320
	15.7 A proper budget?	322
	15.8 Conclusion	326
	Note	326
16	The European Monetary System	328
	D. G. Mayes
	16.1 Founding and inception of the System	328
	16.2 Provisions of the EMS	329
	16.3 Precursors of the EMS	331
	16.4 The System in operation: the overall balance sheet in summary	332
	16.5 Exchange-rate stability	333
	16.6 A framework for counter-inflationary policy	337
	16.7 Competitiveness	340
	16.8 The popularity of the ECU	341
	16.9 The position of the United Kingdom	343
	16.10 The challenge of the Single Market	344
	16.11 Conclusions	347
	Notes	348
17	EC regional policy	349
	H. W. Armstrong
	17.1 The case for an EC regional policy	350
	17.1.1 The 'vested interest' argument	351
	17.1.2 The 'financial targeting' argument	352
	17.1.3 The coordination argument	353
	17.1.4 The 'effects of integration' argument	354
	17.1.5 The 'effects of other EC policies' argument	354
	17.1.6 The 'further integration' argument	355
	17.2 The effects of integration on EC regional disparities	355
	17.3 Current EC regional policy	364
	17.3.1 The ERDF and the 1989 Reform of the Structural Funds	365
	17.3.2 Strategic planning, programming, partnership and

	additionality	369
17.4	Some key issues for the 1990s	371
	17.4.1 EC regional policy and the EMU	372
	17.4.2 The issue of underfunding	373
	17.4.3 Equalisation of disparities or equality of opportunity?	374
	17.4.4 Additionality	374
	17.4.5 New entrants in the 1990s	375
	17.4.6 The final division of policy powers	375
18	EC social policy	376
	C. D. E. Collins
	18.1 The basis of social policy	377
	18.2 The Treaty of Rome	377
	18.3 The Single European Act and the Social Charter	379
	18.4 European citizens?	380
	18.5 The Treaty of Union	382
	18.6 Employment	384
	18.7 The European Social Fund	385
	18.8 Education and vocational training	387
	18.9 Industrial relations	389
	18.10 Health and safety	390
	18.11 Free movement and immigration	391
	18.12 Equal treatment of men and women	395
	18.13 Social exclusion	397
	18.14 An overall view	399
	Appendix: Guide to relevant material published regularly by the EC	400
19	EC environmental policy	401
	A. Marin
	19.1 Background	401
	19.2 Economic (or economists') assessment of environmental policies	404
	19.3 Further implications for EC policies	412
	19.3.1 Polluter pays principle (PPP)	412
	19.3.2 Thresholds and standards	412
	19.3.3 Emission versus ambient standards	414
	19.3.4 Damage and designated areas	416
	19.4 Conclusions	417
	Notes	418
20	Factor mobility	421
	D. G. Mayes
	20.1 The historical perspective	422
	20.2 Capital movements	425
	20.3 The determinants of direct investment	428

20.4	Labour movements	440
20.5	Labour flows in the EC	442
20.6	Capital and labour movements combined	447
	Notes	448
21	EC external trade policy	449
	D. McAleese
21.1	Principles and instruments of the CCP	450
21.2	EC trade patterns	453
21.3	Trade relations with developed countries	458
21.4	Trade policy towards the LDCs	461
21.5	The development of the CCP	465
	21.5.1 Closer European integration	465
	21.5.2 Enlargement	467
	21.5.3 Uruguay Round	468
21.6	Conclusion	469
22	The Lomé Agreement	472
	A. Marin
22.1	Background	472
22.2	General aid	476
22.3	STABEX and SYSMIN	478
22.4	Total aid	481
22.5	Trade	483
22.6	Conclusion	487
	Notes	488
23	Enlargement	490
	D. G. Mayes
23.1	How wide can the Community be?	491
23.2	Coping with a larger Community	495
23.3	Conclusion	496
	Part IV Conclusions	497
24	The development of the EC	499
	A. M. El-Agraa
24.1	Political developments	499
24.2	The period from 1958 to 1969	502
24.3	The period from 1969 to the early 1980s	504
24.4	The present	508
24.5	Conclusion	510

25	The future of the EC	511
	A. M. El-Agraa
	25.1 The immediate and indefinite futures	511
	25.2 The future immediately after 1992	512
	Bibliography	519
	Author index	554
	Subject index	558