Contents

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction: Women, Writing, and Resistance in Jacobean England 1

I THE ROYAL OPPOSITION
1 Enacting Opposition: Queen Anne and the Subversions of Masquing 15
2 Scripting a Heroine's Role: Princess Elizabeth and the Politics of Romance 45
3 Writing Resistance in Letters: Arbella Stuart and the Rhetoric of Disguise and Defiance 67

II RE-WRITING PATRIARCHY
4 Exercising Power: The Countess of Bedford as Courtier, Patron, and Coterie Poet 95
5 Claiming Patrimony and Constructing a Self: Anne Clifford and Her Diary 125
6 Defending Women's Essential Equality: Rachel Speght's Polemics and Poems 153

III LITERARY RE-VISIONS
7 Resisting Tyrants: Elizabeth Cary's Tragedy and History 179
8 Imagining Female Community: Aemilia Lanyer's Poems 213
viii Contents

9 Revising Genres and Claiming the Woman's Part: Mary Wroth's Oeuvre 243
Afterword: The Politics of Jacobean Women's Writing 309

Appendix A: Elizabeth, Lady Falkland, and the Authorship of Edward II 317
Appendix B: Presentation Copies of Lanyer's Salve Deus Rex Judaeorum 321

Notes 323
Index 413