

TRADE BLOCS?

The Future of Regional Integration

edited by Vincent Cable and David Henderson

THE ROYAL INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS
International Economics Programme

CONTENTS

Contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	viii
Abbreviations	ix
1 Overview	1
Vincent Cable
The changing context of regional arrangements	1
Recent developments – Rationale
Different approaches to regional arrangements	5
Market-led versus institutionally driven regionalism –     Complementary versus competitive economic structures – ‘Open’     and ‘closed’ regional arrangements – Deep versus shallow     integration
Impacts of regionalism	10
Regionalism versus multilateralism	12
Conclusions: where regionalism goes from here	13
2 The Principles and Practice of Regional Economic Integration	17
Alasdair Smith
Introduction	17
The economics of integration	18
Trade creation and trade diversion – Trade creation and trade     diversion in the European Community – The nature of intra-EC     trade – Integration with returns to scale and imperfect competition     – Trade, growth and geography – Trade and income distribution –     The lessons of economic integration

Regional blocs as global actors	27
Protectionist effects of European integration – Liberalizing effects of European integration – Rhetoric and reality in trade policy-making – EC trade policy on Japanese cars – European protection in the longer run
3 The EC, European Integration and the World Trading System	35
J.M.C. Rollo
Introduction	35
The size of the new European economy	38
Enlargement – The European Economic Area – The association process – Free trade arrangements and the former Soviet Union
The new European economy	44
How much integration? – Commercial policy integration
Institutional options for the new Europe	48
An ever greater union? – Alternatives to membership – Variable geometry – Timetable
Implications for the rest of the world	55
Conclusion	57
4 Regional Economic Integration in East Asia: Special Features and Policy Implications	59
Masami Yoshida, Ichiro Akimune, Masayuki Nohara and Kimitoshi Sato
Introduction	59
Intra- and inter-regional trade in East Asia, North America and the EC	61
Foreign direct investment in the EC, North America and East Asia	67
FDI in the EC – FDI in North America – FDI in East Asia – Quantitative evaluation of FDI in the three regions – Summary
The driving forces of regional integration in the three areas	75
REI in the EC – REI in North America – Regional integration in East Asia
The role of the Japanese MNCs in the REI of East Asia	89
The special characteristics of Japanese FDI in East Asia – A comparison between Japanese MNCs and US MNCs – The share of Japanese MNCs in inter-regional trade creation within East Asia – Technology transfer through Japanese MNCs

Policy implications of REI in East Asia	101
Free trade regimes and the high growth of East Asia – Merits of regionalism and its implications for East Asian economies – The need for an ‘open’ regionalism
5 Regional Integration and Multinational Production	109
Stephen Thomsen
The economics of geography	110
Trends in regional integration	111
North America – South America – Europe – American firms in Europe – East Asia – Summary of regional trends
Conclusion	123
6 Competition, Integration and Regulation in EC Capital Markets	127
Benn Steil
Introduction	127
EC capital market competition and integration	128
Equity markets – Bond markets
EC capital market regulation	141
National regulatory regimes – EC securities markets legislation
Europe and the world	155
Intermarket linkages – Prospects for non-EC investment firms in Europe – International cooperation and agreements
Conclusions	157
7 European Monetary Integration and Prospects for Monetary Union	160
David Currie and John Whitley
Introduction	160
The background: the postwar history of monetary policy cooperation	161
The rationale for policy cooperation	163
The collapse of the hard EMS: what went wrong	164
Can the hard EMS be restored?	166
The need for European coordination	168
A role for the European Monetary Institute?	171
Progress to EMU?	175

8 Putting 'Trade Blocs' into Perspective	179
David Henderson
'Trade blocs', liberalism and cross-border integration	179
'Trade blocs' in the world of today	180
What makes a 'trade bloc'? – 'Trade blocs' today: myths and reality – A dual pre-eminence
Regionalism and other influences: developments over the past half-century	186
The evolution of policies in the OECD area – The non-OECD world
Looking ahead: the prospects for a liberal world economy	191
A path of opportunity – the EC, the US and others – Regionalism within a liberal international order	