

Deleuze and World Cinemas

David Martin-Jones

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: Deterritorializing Deleuze	1
 Spectacle I: Attraction-Image
Chapter 1 The Attraction-Image: From Georges Méliès to the Spaghetti Western	23
Impossible Voyage (1904)
Django (1966)
Keoma (1976)
 History: Deleuze After Dictatorship
Chapter 2 The Child seer in and as History: Argentine Melodrama	69
Kamchatka (2002)
Chapter 3 Folding and Unfolding History: South Korean Time Travel Movies	100
Calla (1999)
Ditto (2000)
2009: Lost Memories (2002)
 Space: Geopolitics and the Action-Image
Chapter 4 Not Just Any-space-whatever: Hong Kong and the Global/Local Action-Image	133
Police Story (1985)
Chapter 5 Globalization's Action Crystals: Los Angeles in Michael Mann Blockbusters	162
Heat (1995)
Collateral (2004)

Spectacle II: Masala-Image

Chapter 6 The Masala-Image : Popular Indian (Bollywood) Cinema	201
Toofani Tarzan (1936)
Awaara (1951)
Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge (1995)
Conclusion: The Continuing Adventures of Deleuze and World Cinemas	234
Notes	238
Select Bibliography	259
Index	265