

OPEC and the World Oil Market: The Genesis of the 1986 Price Crisis

Papers by Contributors to the Oxford Energy Seminar

EDITED BY ROBERT MABRO

Published by the Oxford University Press
for the Oxford Institute for Energy Studies
1986

CONTENTS

Introduction Robert Mabro	1
Part I: The Uneasy Relationship between OPEC and the Market
1 Can OPEC Hold the Line? Robert Mabro	13
2 OPEC after the Oil Revolution. Robert Mabro	23
3 The Marker and the Market, the Heavy and the Light. Robert Mabro	35
4 The Nature of the Energy Problem. Robert Mabro	45
5 OPEC's Future Pricing Role may be at Stake. Robert Mabro	57
6 Statement of Saudi Policy (1982). Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani	67
7 The Changing Nature of the Oil Market and OPEC Policies. Robert Mabro	75
8 Oil Prices in 1983: a Critical Year. Research Group on Petroleum Exporters' Policies	91
9 OPEC in a Longer-Term Perspective. Alirio A. Parra	111
10 Oil Market Stability: Time for Action? Ali Jaidah	121

11	The Role of OPEC in Market Stabilization. Fadhil Al Chalabi	131
Part II: The Oil Consumers' Views: Security and Free Trade
12	Market Stability and Market Security. Edward R. Fried	141
13	Energy Trade: Problems and Prospects. E. Allan Wendt	151
Part III: Prelude to the 1986 Oil Price Crisis
14	Debate at the Oxford Energy Seminar, 13 September 1985. Final Panel Speakers	165
Part IV: Stabilization and Long-Term Strategies
15	The Economic Development of the Oil-Exporting Countries. Ali Attiga	197
16	The Need for an OPEC Central Trading Agency. Robert Mabro	207
17	Options for OPEC Long-Term Pricing Strategies. Fadhil Al Chalabi	215