

TIME IMMEMORIAL

ARCHAIC HISTORY AND ITS SOURCES

IN CHRISTIAN CHRONOGRAPHY

FROM JULIUS AFRICANUS TO GEORGE SYNCELLUS

William Adler

Dumbarton Oaks Research Library and Collection
Washington, D.C.

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	I
Scope and Method of the Present Study	8
Citations from Earlier Sources in Syncellus' Antediluvian Chronology	9
I Primordial History in Christian Chronography up to Eusebius	15
'Ο ἀδηλος χρόνος: Archaic Chronology and Its Conventions in Greek Historiography	15
Christian Chronography: Its Adaptation and Critique of the Classical Tradition	18
Babylonian and Egyptian Antiquities	20
The Christianization of the Oriental Chronicle	30
II Africanus, Eusebius, and the Problem of Primordial History	43
Christian Chronography and the Era ab origine mundi	43
Eusebius' Chronicle and the Antediluvian Narrative of Genesis	46
Babylonian and Egyptian Antiquities and "Cosmic" History	50
The Greco-Egyptian Chronicle in Late Antiquity	55
Religious Syncretism in the Book of Sothis	60
The Oriental Chronicle and Pagan/Christian Polemic	65
III Panodorus as a Critic of Eusebius	72
Eusebius' Chronicle and Its Legacy	72
Greco-Roman Theories on the Primitive Reckoning of Time	75
Panodorus on the Egyptian and Chaldean "Short Year"	78
The Jewish Pseudepigrapha in Alexandrian Chronography	80
Panodorus as a Product of Alexandrian Christianity	97
Panodorus and His Successors	101

IV	Civilization before the Flood: Euhemeristic Historiography in Alexandrian Chronography	106
	The Origins of Civilization in Hellenistic Historiography	107
	Jewish and Christian Exegesis of Genesis 6	113
	The "Sons of God" and the Primordial Kings of Babylonia	117
	Κάμματα in the Antediluvian Cosmography of Annianus	122
	Euhemeristic Interpretations of Genesis 6 after Annianus	125
V	George Syncellus and His Predecessors	132
	Syncellus and His Critics	132
	Syncellus' Critique of His Alexandrian Predecessors	138
	Syncellus' Adaptation of Borrowed Sources	145
VI	Text and Redaction in Byzantine Chronography	159
	Gelzer's Reconstruction of the Textual History of Syncellus' Sources	160
	Syncellus' Indirect Knowledge of His Alexandrian Authorities	165
	Text and Redaction in Syncellus' Sources for Primordial History	172
	Jewish Pseudepigrapha in the "Logothete" Chronographers	193
	Secondary Collections of Pseudepigrapha: George Cedrenus and George the Monk	206
	Conclusion	232
	Abbreviations	235
	Bibliography	239
	Index	253