

Fred Marte

POLITICAL CYCLES
IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
The Cold War and Africa 1945-1990

VU University Press
Amsterdam 1994

CONTENTS

Acronyms	ix
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv
1. The Cold War: The Three Schools of Scholarship	1
The "Cold War": Usage and Definition of a Term	1
Schools of Thought on the Cold War	3
The Orthodox or Traditionalist Approach	3
Herbert Feis	4
Arthur Schlesinger	7
Gaddis Smith	9
Martin Herz	12
Louis Halle	15
John Lukacs	17
Back to Square One: Maddox's Neo-Traditionalism	19
Some Concluding Remarks on the Traditionalists' Perspective	20
The Revisionist Approach	21
William Appleman Williams	21
Denna Frank Fleming	24
David Horowitz	25
Gabriel Kolko	28
Gar Alperovitz	30
Some Concluding Remarks on the Revisionists' Interpretation	31
Attempts at a Synthesis: The Post-Revisionist Perspective	32
Post-Revisionists and the Cold War's End: Positions and Predictions	36
2. The Phases of Superpower-African Relations	49
Superpower-African Relations in Retrospect	49
The Changing International Environment	51

Global Militarization of the East-West Conflict	53
Globalism versus Regionalism	67
The Globalist School	67
The Regionalist School	68
Globalists and Regionalists Taken to the Test	68
Traditionalist-Revisionist Perspectives and Africa	71
U.S.-Black African Relations	73
The United States and Black Africa: The Early Contacts	73
Phase I: Benign Neglect: 1945-1960	74
Phase II: Challenges and Responses: 1960-1979	82
Slide Back to Benign Neglect	88
The "Tar Baby" Option	89
Phase III: Regression to Cold War Fundamentalism, 1979-1985	98
Phase IV. Superpower Accommodation--End of the Cold War, 1985-1990	103
Soviet-Black African Relations	106
The Roots of Soviet Involvement	106
Phase I: The "Two-Camp Theory": 1945-1953	109
Phase II: Rising Expectations and Disillusionment, 1953-1963	111
The Khrushchev Outreach	113
Phase III: The Tri-polar Rivalry (1963-1979)	122
Phase IV: National Reassessment and Retrospection, 1979-1990	131
Soviet-African Relations in the Light of "Novo Mùshleniè"	137
The Emergence of Gorbachev: The Break in the Soviet Policy Line	139
Conclusions	141
3. Guinea: A Colonial Vendetta with Cold War Ramifications	145
Background	145
Clash of Personalities Becomes a Cold War Issue	148
China as a Source of Inspiration	154
Loosening the Soviet Ties	159
The Role of Cuba	168
Transnational Military Support	169
Conclusions	173
4. Congo: From Colonial Disengagement to Cold War Contest	175
Background	176
Impending Disintegration and East-West Involvement	178
The Belgian Intervention	179
A Cold War Showdown	182
East-West Military Interaction	186
Conclusions	196
5. The Horn of Africa	197
A General Background	197
Defining the Area	197
Basic Conditions of the Horn	197
Globalist and Regionalist Perspectives	199

Geopolitical and Strategic Assumptions	200
Early Great Powers' Involvement	202
Ethiopia	203
Eritrea	204
Somalia	207
Djibouti	209
The Phases of Superpower Involvement in the Horn	210
Phase I: U.S. (Western) Ascendancy in the Region, 1945-1956	210
Phase II: The "Creeping" Soviet Challenge in the Region, 1956-1969	215
Somali Independence and its Implications	218
Prelude to the October 1969 Coup	222
Phase III: Heightened Geopolitical and Strategic Contest, 1969-1986	224
Ethiopia: Prelude to the September 1977 Coup d'Etat	230
The U.S. Reaction	235
The Soviet Reaction	239
The War in the Ogaden and the Reversal of Alliances	241
Phase IV: Mutual Accommodation and Retreat, 1986-1990	252
Conclusions	264
6. Southern Africa: From White Settlers' Bastion to Cold War Theater	270
Globalist and Regionalist Perspectives	270
Phase I: Western Predominance, 1945-1965	275
Great Powers-Southern African Relations	276
Developments in the Black States of Southern Africa	289
Phase II: Soviet Engagement in the Region, 1965-1985	304
Angola's Independence and the Widening Civil War	322
Mozambique: Independence and its Aftermath	326
Reversal of the "Tar Baby" Option	332
Return to Cold War Fundamentalism	336
A Cold War Swap: Cuban Withdrawal for Namibia's Independence	343
Phase III: Superpower Collaboration and Retreat, 1985-1990	351
Angola: Final Attempt at a Military Solution	352
Superpower Détente: The Impact on Mozambique	357
The End of the Cold War: Breakdown of the Apartheid Structure	359
Conclusions	363
7. Political Cycles: International Relations and Africa	366
Comparative Conclusions	367
Cycles and the Phases of International Relations	371
South Africa after the Cold War	363
Notes	387
References	448
Index	479