

Popular Music in France from Chanson to Techno

Culture, Identity and Society

Edited by

HUGH DAUNCEY and STEVE CANNON

ASHGATE

2003

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
General Editor's Preface	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction: Music, modernization and popular identity Richard Middleton	1
1 The study of popular music between sociology and aesthetics: a survey of current research in France Philippe Le Guern	7
2 In from the margins: chanson , pop and cultural legitimacy David Looseley	27
3 The French music industry: structures, challenges and responses Hugh Dauncey	41
4 Popular music on French radio and television Geoff Hare	57
5 The popular music press Mat Pires	77
6 The disintegration of community: popular music in French cinema 1945–present Phil Powrie	97
7 Le Demy-monde: the bewitched, betwixt and between French musical Robynn J. Stilwell	123
8 Chanson engagée and political activism in the 1950s and 1960s: Léo Ferré and Georges Brassens Chris Tinker	139
9 Divided loyalties: singing in the Occupation Christopher Lloyd	153
10 Rock and culture in France: ways, processes and conditions of integration Philippe Teillet	171

11	Globalization, Americanization and hip hop in France Steve Cannon	191
12	Flaubert's sparrow, or the Bovary of Belleville: Édith Piaf as cultural icon Keith Reader	205
13	French electronic music: the invention of a tradition Philippe Birgy	225
	Conclusion: French popular music, cultural exception and globalization Hugh Dauncey and Steve Cannon	243
	Bibliography	257
	Index	271