

Collecting Recipes

---

Byzantine and Jewish Pharmacology in Dialogue

Edited by
Lennart Lehmhaus and Matteo Martelli

DE GRUYTER

Contents

Acknowledgements — v

Lennart Lehmhaus and Matteo Martelli

Introduction — 1

Part 1 Near-Eastern and Galenic Background

Markham J. Geller

Some Remarks on Babylonian Pharmacology — 31

Franziska Desch

Reconsidering the Term Dreckapotheke for the Ancient Near East — 35

Caroline Petit

Galen, Pharmacology and the Boundaries of Medicine:
A Reassessment — 51

Part 2 Pharmacology in Motion: Byzantine and Jewish Traditions

Eric Gowling

Aëtius' Extraction of Galenic Essence — 83

Laurence Totelin

The Third Way — 103

Serena Buzzi e Irene Calà

Le ricette cosmetiche nelle enciclopedie mediche tardoantiche — 123

Gabrielle Lherminier

Paul d'Égine, Galien et l'aspic de Cléopâtre — 147

Christine Salazar

Continuity and Innovation in Paul of Aegina's Chapters on Headaches and Migraines — 175

Matteo Martelli

Recipes Ascribed to the Scribe and Prophet Ezra in the Byzantine and Syriac
Tradition — 195

Lennart Lehmhaus

Beyond Dreckapotheke, Between Facts and Feces: Talmudic Recipes and Therapies in Context — 221

Aaron Amit

Methodological Pitfalls in the Identification of the כּוּס עֵיקָרִין — 255

Siam Bhayro

The Judaeo-Syriac Medical Fragment from the Cairo Genizah: A New Edition and Analysis — 273

Anna Maria Ieraci Bio

La sistematizzazione della farmacologia a Bisanzio — 301

Index locorum — 315

Index nominum rerumque — 327

Index codicum — 334