

MAKING DEMOCRACY WORK:

A Framework for Macroeconomic Policy in South Africa

A report to members of the Democratic Movement of South Africa

from the

MACROECONOMIC RESEARCH GROUP

1993

Centre for Development Studies South Africa

Contents

Chapter 1	The transition to democracy: A framework for macroeconomic policy
1.1	What can be achieved	1
1.2	What the old regime offers	4
1.3	How it all fits together and is affordable	7
1.4	The building blocks for our future	11
Chapter 2	Fiscal policy
2.1	The failures of recent fiscal policy	21
2.2	An initial quantification of the public expenditure strategy	25
2.3	Taxation for equity and efficiency	28
2.4	The sustainability of fiscal policy	38
2.5	Reforming the fiscal institutions	41
2.6	Conclusion	47
Chapter 3	Macroeconomic balance, monetary policy and exchange rate policy
3.1	Saving-investment balances in South Africa	60
3.2	Sustainability of fiscal deficits	62
3.3	Policy directions	63
3.4	Conclusion	72
Chapter 4	Social and physical infrastructure
4.1	Housing	75
4.2	Schooling	90
4.3	Health	104
4.4	Electrification	113
Chapter 5	Labour market policies
5.1	Performance of the labour market: The impact of past policies	147
5.2	The government and orthodox responses to the employment crisis	152
5.3	New policies for employment, wages, working conditions and training	155
Chapter 6	Rural development and food policy
6.1	The role of rural development in an economic programme for a democratic South Africa	171
6.2	The failure and unsustainability of government policy	175
6.3	The needs to be addressed by an agrarian transformation policy	183
6.4	Policy recommendations	192

Chapter 7	Industrial, corporate and trade policy
7.1	Manufacturing decline: Causes and consequences	212
7.2	The mining and mineral processing industry	216
7.3	Market and ownership structures	223
7.4	Small, medium and micro enterprises	226
7.5	Public ownership	229
7.6	Capabilities and institutions	229
7.7	Human resources and productivity growth	229
7.8	The development of indigenous technological capabilities	231
7.9	Trade policy	233
7.10	Macroeconomic policies for industrial development	238
Chapter 8	Banking and finance
8.1	Need for change	243
8.2	The present system	244
8.3	People's banking	246
8.4	Popular saving institutions	248
8.5	Financing investment	252
8.6	The Johannesburg Stock Exchange	253
8.7	Capital market institutions	256
8.8	Commercial bank lending	257
8.9	Debt structure	259
8.10	Regulation of the financial system	259
8.11	The Reserve Bank	261
8.12	Conclusion	263
Chapter 9	The state and the economy
9.1	Constitutional prospects	268
9.2	The role of the state in social infrastructure and land	271
9.3	Efficiency and size of the state sector	273
9.4	The state and markets	275
9.5	South Africa and regional co-operation between states	277
9.6	Conclusion	281
Appendix
	MERG model simulations	283
Bibliography
	MERG Research and Working Papers	317
	Other references	319