

Tony Emmett

Introduction by Patricia Hayes

Popular Resistance and the Roots of Nationalism in Namibia, 1915-1966

Basel Namibia Studies Series 4

Contents

Basel Namibia Studies Series	ix
Note on this edition	x
Introduction by Patricia Hayes	xii
Popular Resistance and the Roots of Nationalism in Namibia, 1915-1966 by Tony Emmett	xix
Acknowledgements	xx
Abstract	xxi
Map	xxii
Introduction: Nationalism, State and Culture	1
Nationalism and the state	3
Nationalism and economic interests – a digression	7
Nationalism and culture	8
Race and class	13
Status, social closure and class	16
Aims and preview of the dissertation	21
Namibian nationalism in context	26
Nationalism and time	29
Nationalism and space	32
Structure of the dissertation, limitations and gaps	33
Section One: The Colonial Context, 1884-1925	37
1 ECOLOGY AND CONFLICT IN GERMAN SOUTH WEST AFRICA	39
The relevance of ecology	39
Pre-colonial economic and political divisions	42
Pre-colonial production and colonial conflict	47
The nature of German imperialism	52
The nature of the colonial state	54
Colonial society after the 1904-1907 rebellions	59
2 NAMIBIA UNDER MARTIAL LAW, 1915-1920	65
The transition from German to South African rule	65
South African interests in colonizing Namibia	67
Constraints on South African policy	70
Changes in colonial policy	75
Strains and contradictions in colonial policy	78
Responses of the colonized	84

3	THE MANDATE AND THE CONSOLIDATION OF THE SETTLER STATE	89
	Economic changes and the realignment of colonial policies	90
	Land settlement policy	93
	The native reserves policy	95
	Contradictions between the settlement and reserves policies	100
	Conclusion	105
Section Two: The First Phase of Popular Resistance		109
4	THE BONDELSWARTS REBELLION	111
	The Bondelswarts under German rule	111
	Relations with white farmers	113
	The dog tax and other state measures	115
	Military threats and political constraints	118
	The rebellion in context	122
5	THE INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL WORKERS' UNION IN NAMIBIA	125
	Formation of the ICU branch in Luderitz	125
	Activities of the ICU, Luderitz	128
	Attitudes of the administration to the ICU	133
	The South West African National Congress	135
6	GARVEYISM AND RESISTANCE IN THE NAMIBIAN COUNTRYSIDE	139
	The Universal Negro Improvement Association in Luderitz	139
	Garveyism and millenarianism in the interior	143
	Millenarianism in perspective	148
	Garveyism and the generalization of rebellion	150
7	THE REHOBOTH REBELLION	155
	The significance of the Rehoboth Gebiet	155
	The Majority Party and the Baster Agreement	158
	The rebellion	159
	Aftermath and significance of the rebellion	160
	Reasons for the failure of the first phase of popular resistance	164
Section Three: Ovamboland and the Contract Labour System		169
8	CONTRACT LABOUR AND THE COLONIAL ECONOMY	171
	The origins of the contract labour system	171
	Colonial policies and migrant labour	173
	Labour shortages and the decline of the mining industry	179
	Decline of the mining industry	180
	Changing relationships between agricultural and mineral production	184
	The role of agriculture in shaping the contract labour system	188
	Further implications of agriculture's dominance over labour policies	192
9	THE CRISIS IN OVAMBOLAND	197
	Colonial policy and the preservation of "traditional" structures	197

	The decline of food production and the contract labour system	199
	Pressures on land resources	202
	Taxation and disarmament	203
	The role of missionaries	205
	Political underdevelopment: undermining indigenous authority	207
	Changes in the land tenure system	210
	Conclusion	212
Section Four: The Contemporary Nationalist Movement		213
10	ETHNIC AND INDIGENOUS INPUTS: HERERO LEADERS AND THE "TROOP" MOVEMENT	215
	The relevance of indigenous culture	215
	The consolidation of colonial control after 1925	217
	The position of the Hereros in the reserves	219
	Origins of Herero dominance	223
	The Herero indigenous leadership	227
	The Otjiserandu	232
	The Okahandja ceremony	235
	The struggle between the Otjiserandu and indigenous leadership	238
	Damara and Ovambo "troops"	242
	Explaining the "troop" movement	245
	The incorporation issue	250
11	THE SOCIAL CONSCIOUSNESS OF CONTRACT LABOURERS AND THE FORMATION OF THE OVAMBOLAND PEOPLE'S ORGANISATION	257
	The social position of contract workers	257
	Contract labour and resistance	260
	Economic growth and labour practice after World War II	261
	Alternative employment opportunities and labour mobility	266
	The social consciousness of contract labourers	269
	The formation of the Ovamboland People's Organisation	273
	Sam Nujoma and developments in Namibia	278
12	THE ROLE OF THE INTELLIGENTSIA AND THE LAUNCHING OF SWANU	283
	Urbanization in the post-World War II period	283
	Education and the development of an intelligentsia	286
	The African Improvement Society	292
	The South West African Student Body	294
	The South West Africa Progressive Association	296
	The South West Africa National Union (SWANU)	299
	The Katutura Removal and Windhoek Shootings	303
	Conclusion	312
13	EXILE POLITICS AND GUERRILLA WARFARE	315
	The exile environment	315

Sources of disunity: SWANU and the Chiefs' Council	318
Sources of disunity: SWANU and SWAPO	321
International relations and affiliations	326
The issue of military struggle	331
Limitations of the SWANU leadership	334
The beginning of the guerrilla war	336
Conclusion	337
Conclusion	343
The state's role in restructuring space	343
"Exclusivist" and "inclusivist" nationalisms	346
Bibliography	351
List of Tables	379
Abbreviations	380
Index (names, organisations, places)	381