

---

---

THE CHALLENGE: ECONOMICS OF PERESTROIKA

Abel Aganbegyan

Introduced by Alec Nove

Edited by Michael Barratt Brown

Translated by Pauline M. Tiffen

---

---

Hutchinson

London Melbourne Sydney Auckland Johannesburg

---

---

CONTENTS

---

---

List of maps, figures and tables	vii
Foreword to The Second World: Teodor Shanin	ix
Introduction: Alec Nove	xv
Author's preface	xxv
1. The Challenge of Perestroika	1
Transition to intensive development	7
Strengthening social provision	15
Radical reform of management	20
More cooperatives and self-employment	25
Glasnost , democracy and self-management	31
The first steps	32
Will it happen?	40
2. On the Eve: The Lessons of History	45
3. Efficiency as the Driving Force of Perestroika	67
4. The Challenge of Technological Breakthrough	83

5. New Investment Policy	99
6. The Radical Reform of Management	109
7. Plan and Market	125
8. An Open Economy	141
9. The Enterprise: Incentives for Self-Development	157
10. Perestroika for People	175
11. Glasnost , Democracy, Self-Management as the Dynamo of Perestroika	193
12. Can the Soviet Economy Sustain a New Round of the Arms Race?	203
13. In Place of a Conclusion: The Soviet Economy in the 21st Century	217
Appendix 1: Use of dynamic inter-branch models to study the future growth of the Soviet economy	229
Appendix 2: Mathematical economic research into the problem of combining centralisation in the development of the national economic system with independence of its separate productive units.	237
Index	243