

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS IN AUSTRALIA

---

DEVELOPMENT, LAW AND OPERATION

CAROL B. FOX
WILLIAM A. HOWARD
MARILYN J. PITTARD

Contents

---

Figures	xi
Tables	xi
Abbreviations	xv
Foreword	xvii
Acknowledgements	xix
Preface	xx
Chapter 1 The nature of industrial/employee relations	1
What's in a name?	2
Analytical methods	3
The emergence of industrial relations	4
The contract of employment	6
Participants in the process	9
Chapter 2 Approaches to industrial relations	13
Dunlop	14
Walker	23
Flanders	23
Marx	24
Braverman	25
Kochan, Katz and McKersie	28
Chapter 3 Industrial conflict and industrial action	36
Manifestations of industrial conflict	37
Causes of industrial conflict	40
Unions and industrial conflict	44
Industrial action	46
• purposes of industrial action	47
• political strikes	49
Measures of industrial conflict	50
• Australian strike statistics	50
• the Australian Workplace Survey	59
• strike statistic: International comparisons	60
Functions of industrial conflict	62
Industrial conflict and absenteeism: comparative costs	64
Chapter 4 Major disputes: case studies	75
Broken Hill strike (1919-20)	76
Metal trades work value case (1967-68)	81

Mudginberri dispute (1985)	83
Victorian nurses' strike (1986)	86
Air pilots' dispute (1989)	90
Chapter 5 Conflict and control: industrial action and the law	96
The right to strike	97
• a matter of law	97
• a matter of practice	99
• sources of controls and sanctions	99
Control at common law of industrial action	100
• the individual worker: breach of the contract of employment	100
• liability in tort law	101
Secondary boycott legislation	108
• Trade Practices Act	108
• relationship between Industrial Relations Act and Trade Practices legislation	113
• reform	114
• state secondary boycott laws	114
Sanctions under industrial relations legislation	115
• breach of award	115
• cancellation of awards and stand-downs	116
• deregistration of unions	116
• statutory offenses	117
Other legislative controls	117
Chapter 6 Trade unions: objectives and strategies	124
Theories of unionism	125
Unions as institutions	136
Unions in Australia	137
• historical background	137
• objectives	142
• strategies	150
• contemporary behaviour	157
Chapter 7 Trade unions: membership and structure	169
Union growth	170
Union density	172
Patterns of organisation	177
Union mergers	181
Chapter 8 Trade union democracy	202
The case for democracy	203
The requirements for democracy	207
The feasibility of democracy	209

Legal regulation in Australia	215
• history	215
• current provisions	219
• amalgamation and rationalisation	224
Chapter 9 Management: theories and concepts	237
The functions of management	238
• management as 'co-ordination of bargains'	238
• management as 'control of the labour process'	240
Frames of reference (ideology)	242
• unitary frame of reference	243
• pluralist frame of reference	243
Management style	245
Management strategic choice	249
• strategic choice: a critique	253
• strategy: a conceptual refinement	255
Management strategy: alternative approaches	256
• strategy: an overview	258
Management structure	259
Employee participation in management	263
• theories of participation	263
• employee participation and industrial democracy	265
• employee participation: management motives	268
Chapter 10 Management in Australia	277
Ideology	278
Aspects of individualism and collectivism	282
• steel industry	284
Strategies	287
• metal and engineering industry	287
• mining industry	292
• communications industry	296
• small business survey	298
Structure	301
Recent developments: the North American influence	303
Employee participation in management	305
• management prerogatives and arbitration	305
• case studies	309
Chapter 11 Employer associations	321
Origins and development	323
Ideology	326
Functions	329
• collective bargaining	329
• specialised services	333

• relations with the state	340
• media and public relations	343
Membership and structure	344
Internal government	351
Chapter 12 Federal labour law	368
Constitutional power	369
Other constitutional heads of power	371
• trade and commerce power	371
• the corporations power	371
• the external affairs power	372
• the defence power	372
• the public service	372
• the Territories power	373
• the 'incidentals' power	373
Commonwealth law regulating industrial relations	373
Institutions	374
The power of the Australian Industrial Relations Commission	376
• industrial disputes	377
• the question of the matter in dispute	378
• the requirement that a dispute 'extend beyond the limits of any one state'	380
• the question of parties	381
• ambit of the award	383
Conciliation and arbitration: legal procedures	384
The award	385
Agreements	385
Enforcement of awards and agreements	388
Interaction of contract and award	388
Awards and collective bargaining	389
National wage cases	390
Registration of associations	391
Chapter 13 Legal regulation of state systems	410
State industrial regulation	411
Institutions and jurisdictions	411
• New South Wales	411
• South Australia	415
• Tasmania	416
• Queensland	417
• Western Australia	418
Role of state tribunals in unfair dismissal	420
Union registration and legal status	422
• effect of registration and legal status	422
• the problem of dual registration	423

• possible solutions	425
Awards and agreements	426
• workplace agreements in Western Australia	427
• unions and agreements	428
Deregulation of labour law: the Victorian example	429
• employment agreements	430
• awards: voluntary arbitration	433
• award enforcement	434
• unfair dismissals	435
• institutions in Victorian industrial law	436
• industrial action	437
• secret ballots	438
• Victoria: concluding comments	438
Dominance of the federal system and co-operation between federal and state systems	438
Chapter 14 Workplace safety and equity	444
Workplace health and safety	446
• workplace safety: an industrial relations issue	446
• problems for federal jurisdiction and safety issues	447
• standard setting and the Australian Commission	448
• safety standards by legislative prescription	451
Workplace Equity: discrimination and equal opportunity	456
Industrial awards, agreements and equity	459
• wages	459
• parental leave	460
• discrimination and dismissals	460
Chapter 15 Conciliation and arbitration	473
Development of the federal system	476
The Australian Industrial Relations Commission: function and operation	477
The process of conciliation and arbitration	482
• conciliation vs arbitration	482
• conciliation	483
• arbitration	485
• compulsion and compliance	488
• government intervention: formal and informal	492
• voluntary conciliation and arbitration	493
• relationship between conciliation, arbitration and collective bargaining	495
Arbitrated awards: a critique	496
• 'floor' of rights	496
• coverage and structure	498
• centralism reconsidered	499

Chapter 16 Arbitration and economics	510
Equal pay	514
Wage determination	516
• basic wage and margin adjustments	517
• the total wage 1967	518
• work value inquiries	518
• productivity and wages: the GMH and Oil Industry cases	521
• wage indexation	523
The ALP-ACTU Prices and Incomes Accord	526
Progress of the Accords	529
Chapter 17 Collective bargaining	542
Nature of collective bargaining	543
• distinguishing features	543
• government involvement	544
• necessary conditions	545
• bargaining power	546
The technique of collective bargaining	551
The negotiation process: a behavioural approach	555
Collective bargaining in Australia	558
• hybrid processes	558
• distinguishing characteristics	560
• collective bargaining and public policy	564
• union purpose and collective bargaining	565
• grievance procedures	568
• bargaining and arbitration: consequences of co-existence	573
• recent developments: the Industrial Relations Reform Act 1993	575
Chapter 18 Enterprise bargaining: origins, techniques and applications	582
Enterprise bargaining and productivity	583
Origins of enterprise bargaining: a conventional model	584
• productivity bargaining: distinguishing characteristics	584
• necessary conditions	586
Productivity bargaining at enterprise level: a case study	589
• Fawley: the 1960 agreements	589
• Fawley: the 1960s to the 1980s	593
Enterprise bargaining in Australia	599
• early attempts	599
• wages policy and the evolution to enterprise bargaining	604
• the conventional model and the Australian case distinguished	624