

Power Theory of Economics

Yasuma Takata
sometime Professor of Economics
Kyoto and Osaka Universities

Translated by Douglas W. Anthony

Foreword by Michio Morishima

M

St. Martin's Press

in association with the
SUNTORY FOUNDATION
OSAKA, JAPAN

Contents

Series Editor's Introduction	ix
Foreword: Yasuma Takata (1883–1971) by Michio Morishima	xi

PART I ANALYSIS OF POWER

1 Social Power	3
1 The meaning of social power	3
2 Internal and external power	4
2 Forms of Power	7
1 Six occupations and six concrete powers	7
2 The prestige of the nobility – on the autonomous nature of nobleness	9
3 Constituents of the power of the nobility – reverence for birth	16
4 The rise and fall of the power of military families and the limits to their power's extent	21
5 The power of the bureaucracy – the hierarchy of administrative authority	26
6 Religious power and intellectual power	30
7 The power of the rich – with particular reference to the power of entrepreneurs	34
8 The formation of the power of economic groups – trade unions and industrial confederations	40
9 Leadership power in group movements	42
10 'Wild-growing' powers lacking any social group	47
11 The purely unconscious distribution of power	50
3 Power and the Economy	55
1 Does economics determine politics?	55
2 An economy ruled by power – feudalism	59

3	Contemporary production relations and innate social status	63
4	The law of correspondence between social status and wages	65
5	Freedom and control in the economy	68
PART II POWER THEORY OF ECONOMICS
4	Vision and Analysis	73
1	Theories of power in the past	73
2	The significance of power theory	77
3	The utilitarian economy and the power economy	82
4	The first and the second approximation	86
5	The marginal productivity theory of wages	89
6	Unemployment and its causes	91
7	Criticisms of Hicks' theory	96
8	On involuntary unemployment	98
5	Criticisms and Counter-Criticisms	103
1	Response to the criticism that the nature of power is non-quantifiable	103
2	Böhm-Bawerk's criticisms of power theory	108
3	Counter-criticisms – the dependent nature of population	111
4	The supply of labour	114
	(a) In the short run	114
	(b) In the long run – the interaction between economy and population	115
5	Anti-Böhm-Bawerk	120
6	Implications	123
1	Partial equilibrium	123
	(a) Prices	123
	(b) Wages	128
	(c) Interest	132
	(d) Rent	135
2	General equilibrium	139
	(a) Von Böhm-Bawerk's and Knut Wicksell's new wage fund theory	139

Contents

vii

(b) Powerlessness of labour in the theory	150
(c) The theory of power equilibrium	152
3 Power equilibrium	158
(a) Keynes's theory of employment	158
(b) The liquidity function	161
(c) Unemployment and power equilibrium	163
4 Dynamics	164
(a) Trade cycle theory – criticisms of von Hayek's theory	164
(b) The theory of economic development	167
(c) Marx's theory	170
(d) Schumpeter's theory	172
5 Conclusion	175
Postscript	179
Notes and References	181
Bibliography	189
Index	193