

Structurally Adjusted Africa

Poverty, Debt and Basic Needs

Edited by
DAVID SIMON, WIM VAN SPENGEN,
CHRIS DIXON AND ANDERS NÄRMAN

Pluto  Press
LONDON • BOULDER, COLORADO

Contents

List of Tables	ix
List of Figures	x
Acronyms	xi
Contributors	xiv
Sponsoring Organisations	xvii
Preface	xix
1 Introduction: The Nature of Structural Adjustment	1
Chris Dixon, David Simon and Anders Närman
The origins of structural adjustment	2
Evaluation of structural adjustment programmes	6
Conclusion	8
Outline of the book	10
Part One – Crisis and Change in Sub-Saharan Africa
2 Debt, Democracy and Development: Sub-Saharan Africa in the 1990s	17
David Simon
Introduction	17
Economic crisis and increasing peripherality	22
Critical geopolitics and the changing world order	35
Conclusions and prospects for democracy and development	37
3 Fighting Fire with Petrol: How to Counter Social Ills in Africa with Economic Structural Adjustment	45
Anders Närman
Perspectives on structural adjustment	45
Education	50
The labour market	53
Conclusions	53

4	Regional Food Trade and Policy in West Africa in Relation to Structural Adjustment	57
	Leo De Haan, Andries Klaasse Bos and Clemens Lutz
	Regional food trade and structural adjustment: no clear relationship	57
	The concept of food security	59
	Food policy in West Africa	62
	The controversy between protection and the world market	63
	Regional food trade and the common West African cereal market	66
	Expanding the West African market: an ongoing debate	71
	Conclusions	73

Part Two – Structural Adjustment and Urban Basic Needs

5	The Medicine that Might Kill the Patient: Structural Adjustment and Urban Poverty in Zimbabwe	79
	Dan Tevera
	Introduction	79
	The economy since independence and government policies	80
	The structural adjustment programme	81
	The structural adjustment programme and poverty alleviation	82
	Survival strategies of the urban poor under the economic and social action programme	86
	Conclusion	87
6	The Impact of Structural Adjustment on Intermediate Towns and Urban Migrants: An Example from Tanzania	91
	Mogens Holm
	Introduction	91
	Local development and decentralisation in Tanzania after independence	93
	'Conditionalities' for development aid	95
	Macro-economic programmes and social inequity	97
	'Conditionalities' and the collapse of local government	98
	The decline in local development	99
	Do macro-economic programmes affect intermediate towns?	100
	Urban migrants' living conditions in relation to the collapse of infrastructure and urban facilities	101
	Conclusion	104

Part Three – The Differential Rural Impact of Structural Adjustment: Case Studies from Tanzania

7	Structural Adjustment, Sugar Sector Development and Netherlands Aid to Tanzania	109
	Jan Sterkenburg and Arie van der Wiel
	Macro-economic policy and the role of foreign aid	110
	Tanzanian sugar policy	113
	Production and distribution system	119
	Performance of the sugar industry	122
	Netherlands aid to the sugar sector	128
	Conclusion	133
8	Structural Adjustment and Rural Development in Tanzania: The Case of Makete District	136
	Milline Mbonile
	Introduction	136
	Makete migration survey	138
	Migration and rural development	138
	Land reforms	144
	Improvement of socio-economic infrastructure	148
	Supplementary occupations	153
	Conclusion	155
9	Structural Adjustment Programmes and Peasant Responses in Tanzania	159
	Claude G. Mung'ong'o and Vesa-Matti Loiske
	Introduction	159
	The case studies	163
	The impact of SAPs and peasant responses: a discussion	176
	Conclusion	180

Part Four – Sub-Saharan Africa in Comparative Perspective

10	Structural Adjustment and Government Consumption: Sub-Saharan Africa and Industrialised Countries Compared	187
	Indra Wahab
	Introduction	187
	Data, calculation method and sample	188
	Share of government consumption	189
	Changes in other macro-economic variables	194
	Summary and conclusions	199

11	Structural Adjustment in Comparative Perspective: Lessons from Pacific Asia Chris Dixon	202
	Introduction	202
	The less-developed Pacific Asian economies in perspective	203
	Pacific Asia and the international economy	209
	The pattern of adjustment in Pacific Asia	213
	Structural adjustment in Thailand	216
	Conclusion: lessons of structural adjustment and economic recovery growth in Pacific Asia	223
12	Conclusions: On the Contextuality of Structural Adjustment in a Not So New World Order Wim van Spengen	229
	Index	237