

The Asian Financial Crisis

Causes, Contagion and Consequences

edited by

Pierre-Richard Agénor, Marcus Miller
David Vines and Axel Weber

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of figures	page xvi
List of tables	xviii
Preface	xxi
List of conference participants	xxiii
Acknowledgements	xxvi
List of abbreviations and acronyms	xxvii

Introduction	1
Pierre-Richard Agénor, Marcus Miller, David Vines and Axel A. Weber

Part One: General Accounts

1 The role of macroeconomic and financial sector linkages in East Asia's financial crisis	9
Pedro Alba, Amar Bhattacharya, Stijn Claessens, Swati Ghosh and Leonardo Hernandez
1 Introduction
2 Overview of capital flows and economic developments in East Asia
3 The build-up in vulnerability: a simple analytical framework
4 Contribution of macroeconomic policies to the build-up of vulnerability	—
5 Institutional weakness and macro-financial fragility in East Africa's financial sectors
6 Conclusions
Discussion
Sule Ozler

- 2 The Asian crisis: lessons from the collapse of financial systems, exchange rates and macroeconomic policy 67
Jenny Corbett and David Vines
- 1 Introduction
 - 2 Vulnerability
 - 3 Asian vulnerabilities
 - 4 Negative shocks
 - 5 Crises and collapse
 - 6 The disintegration of macroeconomic policy making
 - 7 The precondition for a reconstruction of macroeconomic policy: resolution of sovereign solvency crises
 - 8 Challenges for the IMF
 - 9 Conclusion: a historical context
- Appendix: Thailand, a stylised chronology
Discussion
Christopher Bliss
- 3 Are capital inflows to developing countries a vote for or against economic policy reforms? 112
Michael P. Dooley
- 1 What lies behind private capital inflows?
 - 2 Recent private capital inflows into developing countries
 - 3 Arbitrage capital flows
 - 4 Capital flows in 1994–1998
 - 5 Solutions?
- Discussion
Kenneth Kletzer
- 4 The Asian crisis: an overview of the empirical evidence and policy debate 127
Giancarlo Corsetti, Paolo Pesenti and Nouriel Roubini
- 1 Introduction
 - 2 Interpreting the Asian crisis
 - 3 The empirical evidence: a first look
 - 4 Strategies to recover from the crisis
 - 5 The Asian crisis and the debate on capital controls
 - 6 Open issues
- Appendix
Discussion
Richard Portes

Part Two: Theoretical Contributions

5 Capital markets and the instability of open economies 167

Philippe Aghion, Philippe Bacchetta and Abhijit Banerjee

- 1 Introduction
- 2 A simple framework
- 3 Financial liberalisation and macroeconomic volatility
- 4 Monetary and exchange rate policy
- 5 Policy conclusions

Appendix 1: solving the model in the Leontief case

Appendix 2: why full financial liberalisation – unlike foreign direct investment – may destabilise an emerging market economy

Discussion

Gianluca Femminis

6 Volatility and the welfare costs of financial market integration 195

Pierre-Richard Agénor and Joshua Aizenman

- 1 Introduction
- 2 The basic framework
- 3 Financial autarky
- 4 Financial openness
- 5 Welfare effects of financial integration
- 6 Endogenous supply of funds
- 7 Congestion externalities
- 8 Conclusions

Discussion

John Driffill

7 A theory of the onset of currency attacks 230

Stephen Morris and Hyun Song Shin

- 1 Introduction
- 2 Elements of a theory
- 3 The incomplete information game
- 4 The argument
- 5 The limiting case
- 6 Concluding remarks

Discussion

Jonathon P. Thomas

Part Three: Contagion

- 8 Contagion: monsoonal effects, spillovers and jumps between multiple equilibria 265
Paul Masson
- 1 Introduction
 - 2 Empirical evidence
 - 3 Models with multiple equilibrium
 - 4 Conclusions
- Discussion
Axel A. Weber
- 9 Contagion and trade: why are currency crises regional? 284
Reuven Glick and Andrew K. Rose
- 1 Introduction
 - 2 The regional nature of currency crises
 - 3 Channels of contagion
 - 4 Methodology
 - 5 Results: explaining the incidence of currency crises
 - 6 Results: explaining the intensity of currency crises
 - 7 Conclusions
- Appendix
Discussion
Mark P. Taylor
- 10 Competition, complementarity and contagion in East Asia 312
Ishac Diwan and Bernard Hoekman
- 1 Introduction
 - 2 Real-side stories
 - 3 Linkages between East Asian economies
 - 4 Patterns of trade
 - 5 Direct investment flows
 - 6 Conclusions
- Appendix
Discussion
Jenny Corbett and David Vines

Part Four: Policy Responses

11	Coping with crises: is there a ‘silver bullet’?	357
	Amar Bhattacharya and Marcus Miller
	1 Introduction: globalisation challenged
	2 Six key ideas in the debate
	3 Elements of the East Asia crises: creditor panic, asset bubbles and sharks
	4 The strategic case for changing the rules of the game
	5 Improving the financial architecture
	6 Conclusions
 12	 Must financial crises be this frequent and this painful?	 386
	Joseph Stiglitz
	1 The evidence that crises are frequent and painful
	2 Should we do something about economic crises?
	3 Are there feasible interventions to prevent crises?
	4 Are there feasible interventions to improve responses to crises?
	5 Conclusions
 13	 Round Table discussion	 404
	Richard Portes, Phillip Turner and Charles A. Goodhart
	Index	 412