Epistemology of Language

Edited by

ALEX BARBER

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

Contributors ix

1. Introduction 1
Alex Barber

Part One: Knowledge in Linguistics

2. Rabbit-Pots and Supernovas: On the Relevance of Psychological Data to Linguistic Theory 47
Louise M. Antony

3. Is Linguistics a Branch of Psychology? 69
Stephen Laurence

4. Linguistics is Not Psychology 107
Michael Devitt

5. Intentional Content and a Chomskian Linguistics 140
Georges Rey

Robert J. Matthews

Part Two: Understanding

7. The Character of Natural Language Semantics 217
Paul M. Pietroski

8. Grasping Objects and Contents 257
Reinaldo Elugardo and Robert J. Stainton
9. Knowledge of Meaning
   Stephen Schiffer 303

10. Understanding and Knowledge of What is Said
    Elizabeth Fricker 325

11. Truth Conditions and their Recognition
    Alex Barber 367

Part Three: Linguistic Externalism

12. Externalism, Logical Form, and Linguistic Intentions
    Peter Ludlow 399

13. Ignorance of Meaning
    Gabriel Segal 415

14. Externalism and the Fregean Tradition
    Jessica Brown 431

Part Four: Epistemology through Language

15. What is the Acquisition Argument?
    Alexander Miller 459

16. Remembering, Imagining, and the First Person
    James Higginbotham 496

Index 535