

Inside the IMF

An Ethnography of Documents,
Technology and Organisational Action

Richard H. R. Harper

Rank Xerox Research Centre
Regent Street
Cambridge

ACADEMIC PRESS

San Diego London Boston

New York Sydney Tokyo Toronto

Table of Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
1. Introduction	1
Overview of the book	8
2. What is a document?	13
Overview of the chapter	14
Document technologies: new and old	15
Towards a non-technical conception of documents	24
Assessing documents in action	41
Conclusion: a view of documents within the Fund	43
3. Designing ethnography	49
Overview of the chapter	49
The ethnographic turn: why has it come about?	51
Research into the social impact of computing	52
Defining new sets of expertise	54
Changes in the perspective of organisations	57
The Fund's Experience	59
What is ethnography?	63
Field work programmes	67
Information careers	69
Other settings	70
Comment	72
Ritual inductions	74
Undertaking interviews and observing work	77
Ethnography within a process	85
Conclusion	88
4. A sketch of the Fund	91
Overview of the chapter	92
Bretton Woods	93
The code of conduct	94
Phase 1: 1946–1966	95
Phase 2: 1966–1971	96
Phase 3: 1971–1978	98

Phase 4: 1978–1985.....	100
Phase 5: 1985 onwards.....	101
The Fund's Articles.....	102
The current structure of the Fund.....	105
Conclusion.....	109
5. The machinery of policy work.....	111
Overview of the chapter.....	113
The tentative schedule.....	114
An introduction to policy work.....	118
Judgement work.....	122
The review process.....	124
Talking texts.....	129
Conclusion.....	130
6. The use of information.....	137
Overview of the chapter.....	138
The Statistics Department.....	139
Working routines.....	143
Comment.....	145
The use of documents.....	153
Conclusion.....	155
7. Desk officers.....	159
Overview of the chapter.....	161
The work of desk officers.....	162
Practical contexts.....	164
New technologies and desk officers.....	167
Deepening the characterisation of work.....	171
Conclusion.....	172
8. A mission to Arcadia.....	175
Overview of the chapter.....	177
Attitudes towards mission work.....	179
Approaching Arcadia with understanding.....	182
A picture of doings: the Fund's view of Arcadia.....	183
The specific concerns of the mission.....	184
The mission.....	187
Day one: a vignette.....	187
Comment.....	191
Ordinary work.....	194
A vignette of collecting data: the fiscal economist's work.....	196
Meetings! More meetings!.....	198
Numbers as doings.....	200
Sorting out the facts in the facts.....	202
Discussing the facts amongst the facts: a vignette.....	206
Sanctioning numbers.....	208

Building up a picture	211
A vignette of policy discussions	214
Meeting with the Central Bank.....	215
Comment.....	219
Meetings that count	223
The raw and the cooked	225
Conclusion.....	229
9. The use of a staff report.....	231
Overview of the chapter.....	232
The review process.....	234
The mechanics of the process.....	235
The draft staff report.....	235
The perspective from PDR.....	237
The perspective of chief reviewers	240
A digression: some remarks on Fund culture	245
Responsibility for change	249
The last stages in the career of a staff report.....	251
Summings up	255
Comment.....	256
Conclusion.....	258
10. Conclusion.....	261
Overview of the chapter.....	262
Documenting practices and the Fund's organisational problematics.....	264
The flow of work	266
The document career.....	269
Missions	275
The post-mission process	278
The end of the document career.....	281
Conclusion.....	286
References.....	289
Index.....	301