

The Jewish Exodus from Iraq 1948–1951

MOSHE GAT

Department of General History and Department of Political Studies, Bar-Ilan University, Israel

FRANK CASS
LONDON • PORTLAND, OR

Contents

Preface	1
1. The Socio-economic Conditions of the Jewish Community	5
Modernization processes	5
Jewish integration into Iraqi society	12
2. The Jewish Community in the Independent Iraqi State	17
The June 1941 riots (farhud)	17
Establishing the underground	25
On the eve of the Arab invasion of Israel	28
3. Iraq Changes its Official Policy towards the Jewish Community	32
The policy of controlled suppression	32
The twilight of the Iraqi Jewish community	42
4. The Crisis of October–November 1949: A Turning Point for the Jewish Community	51
Iraq, Israel and the Zionist underground	51
The underground movement exploits the crisis	58
5. The Legislation on Jewish Emigration	68
The escape movement and its impact	68
The Jews and the economy	74
Zionism and Communism	76
6. Organizing the Exodus	79
The Iranian route	79
Ben-Porat's initiative and its outcome	90
Near East moves in	96
Israel's immigration policy	101

THE JEWISH EXODUS FROM IRAQ

7. Iraq, Israel and the Jewish Emigration Question	106
Between the hammer and the anvil	106
Nuri as-Said – a solution at all costs	118
Ending the Iraqi diaspora	134
8. The Property Freezing Law – March 1951	144
The law	144
Israeli policy	151
9. Was Terror Employed to Accelerate the Exodus?	160
The problem of the ‘Prisoners of Zion’	160
The underground is tracked down	164
The connection between the bombings and the exodus of the Jews	175
10. Conclusion	192
Abbreviations and Bibliography	196
Index	205