

Colonial Fantasies

Conquest, Family, and Nation

in Precolonial Germany, 1770–1870

Susanne Zantop

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments vii

Introduction i

I Armchair Conquistadors; or, The Quest for “New Germany” 17

1 Tiranos animales o alemanes: Germans and the “Conquest” 18

2 A Conquest of the Intellect 31

II Colonizing Theory:

Gender, Race, and the Search for a National Identity 43

3 Gendering the “Conquest” 46

4 Racializing the Colony 66

5 Patagons and Germans 81

III Colonial Families; or, Displacing the Colonizers 99

6 Fathers and Sons: Donnerstag and Freitag, Campe and Krusoe 102

7 Husbands and Wives: Colonialism Domesticated 121

8 Betrothal and Divorce; or, Revolution in the House 141

IV Virgin Islands, Teuton Conquerors 163

9 The German Columbus 166

10 The Second Discovery 173

11 Colonial Fantasies Revisited 191

Epilogue: Vitzliputzli’s Revenge 202

Notes 211

Bibliography 263

Index 287