

The New European Security Disorder

Simon Duke

Assistant Professor

Political Science Department

The Pennsylvania State University

M

St. Martin's Press

in association with

ST ANTONY'S COLLEGE, OXFORD

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	x
List of Maps	xii
Acknowledgements	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
Introduction	1
Power and Security	3
Which Europe?	10
PART I ASSESSING EUROPE'S SECURITY CONCERNS
1 The Nature of Post-Cold War Security	17
Smoke and mirrors?	19
The search for a new 'ism'	22
2 European Security Challenges in the Post-Cold War World	29
Weapons proliferation and the nuclear threat from the ex-Soviet Union	29
Nationalism and irredentism	57
Migratory pressures	69
The role of Germany in any new European security order	82
Implications for the security of Europe	83
Conclusions	88
PART II LEADERSHIP ISSUES IN POST-COLD WAR EUROPEAN SECURITY
3 European Leadership: A Ship without a Rudder	93
France et l'Europe des patries	95
France and the end of the Cold War	100
Into the future	113
Fog in the channel	117
Conclusions	132
4 Germany, Security and the Post-Cold War World	135
Basic law, basic problem	143
Test cases: Bosnia and Somalia	150
German security policy	154
Common security policy?	156
Conclusion	163

5	The US Role in Europe's Security	165
	Primus inter pares	165
	Underpaid, underloved, and on-the way out?	170
	The end of the transatlantic community?	186
	Military options for the US in Europe	189
	The Bush legacy	194
	Conclusion	196
 PART III THE NEW EUROPEAN SECURITY DISORDER
6	The 'New Security Architecture'	203
	The new security environment	204
	A new security architecture?	208
	Conclusion	214
7	Euro-Confusion	215
	Building Euro-models: round one	215
	Building Euro-models: round two	217
	The European Community and the Maastricht process	224
	The WEU: the EC's 'security branch'	231
	The Franco-German Corps: an expensive language school?	241
8	Pan-European Options: The Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe	255
	From Paris back to Helsinki . . . and beyond	256
	CSCE and Yugoslavia	267
	Interlinking, but obstructive	269
	Conclusions	272
9	The Transatlantic Option	275
	Changed circumstances: new problems	275
	The attempt to transform the Alliance	278
	Changing the geographical focus	280
	Au revoir or adieu?	286
	The New Strategic Concept	288
	The role of nuclear weapons	292
	The out-of-area problem: NATO's Achilles heel?	295
	The North Atlantic Cooperation Council	301
	Command and Control	304
	NATO revived? The 'Partnership for Peace'	305
	Conclusion	311

PART IV PAN-EUROPEAN SECURITY?

10	Democracy without Security	317
	Economic assistance and stability	333
	The European stability pact	340
	Peace by pieces	343
	Conclusion	345
11	Lessons for European Security from the Yugoslav Conflict	347
	Leadership and responsibility	351
	Institutional inertia	355
	Ramifications of the Bosnian crisis for European security	364
	Conclusion	366
12	Conclusions	368
	Appendix I	382
	Appendix II	385
	Notes and References	391
	Bibliography	433
	Index	440