

THE BROKEN ESTATE

Essays on Literature and Belief

JAMES WOOD

JONATHAN CAPE
LONDON

Contents

✓ Introduction	XI
Sir Thomas More: A man for one season	I
Jane Austen's Heroic Consciousness	17
The All and the If: God and metaphor in Melville	29
Half-Against Flaubert	48
Gogol's Realism	61
What Chekhov Meant by Life	74
Virginia Woolf's Mysticism	89
Thomas Mann: The master of not quite	106
D.H. Lawrence's Occultism	122
T.S. Eliot's Christian Anti-Semitism	137
George Steiner's Unreal Presence	155
Iris Murdoch's Philosophy of Fiction	174
Martin Amis: The English imprisonment	186
Thomas Pynchon and the Problem of Allegory	200
Against Paranoia: The case of Don DeLillo	213
John Updike's Complacent God	227
The Color Purple: Toni Morrison's false magic	236
The Monk of Fornication: Philip Roth's nihilism	246
Julian Barnes and the Problem of Knowing Too Much	261
W.G. Sebald's Uncertainty	273
The Broken Estate: The legacy of Ernest Renan and Matthew Arnold
1 The Nineteenth Century	285
2 The Evangelical Struggle	293

3 The Twentieth Century	300
4 The Problem of Evil	307
Acknowledgements	312
Index	313